Sedalia firefighters spray water to cool the remains of Allen's Funeral Home, 117 East Jefferson, Friday morning after fire leveled most of the two-story house. Firemen were at the scene for almost six hours. The cause of the blaze is under investigation and listed by fire officials as undetermined.

Fire razes funeral home

The State Fire Marshal's office was notified of a $15,000 fire that destroyed Allen's Funeral Home, 117 East Jefferson, early Friday morning.

The large house, formerly the Green Funeral Home, was engulfed in flames when the fire department received the alarm about 4:25 a.m. Friday.

Assistant Chief Kenneth Sublett said that every room of the house was on fire when the first pumper arrived on the scene and that the fire had started to burn through the roof.

Sublett said that a rear second floor outside door was open when firemen arrived and that the screen door was also open. E. Davis Allen, Kansas City, owner of the building, told Sublett that the door had been nailed shut from the inside on Wednesday.

Allen said he and his family were in Sedalia Wednesday and cut the grass at the funeral home. That was when his wife nailed the door shut.

Neighbors reported the fire and said at that time the house was already engulfed. Fire officials reported the call they received at first reported the blaze as a brush fire, but two trucks were dispatched to the scene. The second call received by the fire department told them the funeral home was on fire.

Fire officials are listing the business as an "inactive funeral home" because there had not been a funeral there for some time.

Fire Chief Willis Jabas called the fire marshal's office Friday morning to request the blaze be investigated. However, Jabas said he doubted if the investigation could turn up anything because of the extent of the damage. Jabas said he suspected the fire may have been lit.

The funeral home was empty except for furnishing at the time of the fire and no one was injured.

Firemen remained at the scene wetting down the building's remains until 10:10 a.m.

Damage was listed at $10,000 to the building and $5,000 to the contents.

Mrs. Allen said the home is currently involved in litigation. Her husband contracted with George Green, Lexington, to sell the business but that Allen resumed control of the business in March.

Abortion funds halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, which has helped pay for more than one million abortions for poor women in recent years, is finished paying unless a woman's life is endangered by her pregnancy.

While arguments continue in court and Congress remains deadlocked on the abortion issue, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. ordered enforcement Thursday of a year-old legal provision that was prevented from taking effect for months by a court challenge.

The provision was enacted last year to bar the use of federal money for any abortion "except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

But it wasn't put into effect because U.S. District Court Judge John F. Dooling Jr. in Brooklyn declared it unconstitutional.

On Thursday, at the instruction of the Supreme Court, Dooling lifted his order.

Less than an hour later, Califano, who personally opposes abortion, made this announcement:

"The department will provide federal financial participation in the cost of abortions only where the attending physician, on the basis of his or her professional judgment, has certified that the abortion is necessary because the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

Califano said victims of rape or incest who receive pregnancy-preventing treatment before they know whether they are pregnant will not be affected by the announcement. Nor will the government stop financing treatment for ectopic pregnancies, in which the fertilized egg develops outside the uterus and cannot grow to term, he said.

Reaction to Califano's announcement was predictable.

A spokeswoman for the National Right to Life Committee called it "one small step toward our goal of a human life" constitutional amendment to outlaw abortions.

The National Abortion Rights Action League said it would press Congress for legislation "to protect the lives and health of poor women who need the medical service of abortion."

Federal money for elective abortions has been available almost exclusively to poor women eligible for Medicaid, a health care program administered by the states but financed mostly by the federal government.

Medicaid had paid for nearly one third of the 1.1 million legal abortions performed annually in the United States since the Supreme Court ruled in 1973 that a woman has the right to decide with her physician whether to have an abortion.

Individual states may decide to pay the full cost of Medicaid abortions themselves rather than terminate all but the lifesaving procedures, but a spot check indicates only seven states, Alaska, Hawaii, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nevada, Oregon and Washington, plan to do so.

either a lot of separate systems, using lagoons or mechanical type treatment plants, or pumping stations which will pump drainage to a larger treatment facility in a larger drainage area," he said.

Perhaps one of the city's worst sewage treatment problems is the south waste water treatment plant, 28th and New York. The plant, designed to handle a million gallons of waste flow per day, currently handles nearly 1½ million gallons per day.

Carter signs bill creating youth jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, calling youth unemployment "a serious affliction on our American democracy," today signed legislation to put 200,000 young people to work.

The $1 billion program he signed into law includes park and forestry jobs like those in the depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps. Carter put his name on the bill with two green pens at a ceremony in the White House Rose Garden.

The legislation is the last part of the President's economic stimulus package. Carter said an additional 1,000 public service jobs are being contracted for each week and Americans are getting a tax cut under parts of the program already in effect.

The youth employment program includes job training and is also aimed at cutting the rate of high school dropouts. Carter said the program would encourage young people who lose self-esteem because they can't find work and subsequently "lash out against authority."

"This program will single out young people and give them a chance in life," the President said.

It was the third time this week Carter sat at a small brown table on the Rose Garden lawn to sign legislation. On Wednesday, he put his signature on strip mining control legislation. Thursday he signed into being the Department of Energy.

The President set aside time for the signing before meeting for the third time in two days with President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said the two leaders are turning to efforts to improve relations between Tanzania and the United States after discussing the possibilities of bringing black majority rule to Rhodesia without "an escalation to massive bloodshed and civil war."

After his session with Nyerere, Carter is witnessing an oath-taking ceremony for James R. Schlesinger, the nation's first secretary of energy. The Senate confirmed Schlesinger's nomination Thursday a few hours after Carter signed into being the Department of Energy which Schlesinger will head.

Later today, the President and Mrs. Carter planned to fly home to Plains, Ga., where they will return to the Methodist church in which they were married to be guests at the wedding tonight of Mrs. Carter's brother, Murray Smith.

Carter will announce his welfare program Saturday at a news conference in a small, one-story agricultural experiment station near Plains. The meeting with reporters will be available for live radio and television coverage.

Carter asked Congress for the youth jobs program to attack persistent high rates of unemployment among the nation's 23 million young workers. In recent years, the unemployment rate for persons between 16 and 24 years old has hovered around 15 per cent.

Teen-age unemployment is even higher. For blacks and other minorities, it ranges from 35 to 40 per cent. The national unemployment rate is 7.1 per cent, which means about seven million persons are out of work.

The new program, funded in May with $1 billion, provides:

—A Young Adult Conservation Corps, patterned after the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), established during the Depression.

The program will put 35,000 persons between the ages of 16 and 23 to work stocking streams, planting trees and repairing trails in national parks and forests. The jobs will last a year each and pay at least the minimum wage. About a third of the money for the jobs will be earmarked for work in state and local parks and forests.

—30,000 jobs in local communities for people 16 to 19 years old.

These jobs will provide 20 hours of work a week during school and 40 hours a week during the summer if the workers stay in school. Each community can determine jobs to be handled by the workers, from weatherizing homes of the elderly to building and maintaining parks.

—138,000 jobs and work training positions for people 16 to 21 years old from low income families.

These jobs will prepare workers for careers. State and local governments can experiment with a variety of training projects. Funds for the jobs generally will be distributed according to each state's share of national unemployment.

MPS seeks increase in its utility rates

Monthly electric bills in Sedalia would increase by an average of $7.55 and natural gas bills by an average of $2.56 if a rate increase request announced Friday by the Missouri Public Service Co. (MPS) is approved by the Missouri Public Service Commission.

Unlike most other MPS natural gas hike requests made in recent months, this request does not reflect an increase in the price of natural gas which MPS receives from its supplier, the Cities Service Gas Co. in Oklahoma. Rather, according to Richard C. Green, MPS president and general manager, the electric and natural gas rate requests stem from increasing company costs incurred in adding generating units and other equipment to meet the increased electrical demands of existing and new customers.

Also, Green said, the new rates are needed because of increases in the cost of labor and materials to maintain the firm's electric and natural gas systems. MPS filed its last rate increase unrelated to wholesale natural gas prices, in July, 1975. This hike took effect in June, 1976.

"In the past five years, the summer-time peak demand for electricity has increased 34 per cent, while the number of new customers has increased 16 per cent," Green said. "Retail kilowatt-hour sales for the first seven months of this year are 14 per cent greater than sales during the same period last year." The company anticipates an additional $100 million will be required during the next 3½ years for electric and natural gas facilities.

Green also noted that MPS has added three combustion turbine generators to handle continually-growing demands for electricity in the summer. "The company's portion of the Jeffrey Energy Center, an electric production facility in which we are one of four owners, has cost $23.5 million to date," he said.

The generators and the center will provide the capacity MPS needs to supply projected electrical needs through 1984, Green added. MPS, he said, is projecting a six to seven per cent peak demand growth rate each year until 1985.

MPS provides electricity to nearly 120,000 customers and natural gas to 40,000 customers in 28 western Missouri counties, including Pettis County.

House finishing up on energy package

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House stayed close to its own timetable and White House wishes for finishing work today on President Carter's national energy program.

On the way to final passage, Democrats brushed aside a Republican move to apply crude oil tax revenues to reducing tax bills next year. The vote was 232 to 175.

Carter would rebate the tax revenues to heating oil users and to Americans in every income category, regardless of whether they pay taxes next year. The average estimated rebate would be about $22.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said the presidential program was a strong one, and deputy House Whip Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said, "this is the strongest bill the administration could have expected."

With House leaders hoping to complete work on the bill before Congress begins its August recess today, the main votes remaining are on a Republican effort to junk the President's energy plan in favor of their own.

Generally, the GOP alternative energy plan calls for less regulation of the oil industry. Backers of the proposal say it would assure ample fuel supplies and prevent a repetition of last winter's shortages and plant closings.

The Republican blueprint has virtually no chance of approval by the Democratic

House, and Republicans are so confident that Carter's program won't work that they already have announced plans to campaign against it in next year's congressional elections.

In debate Thursday, lawmakers handed the President one of his few setbacks on the bill, rejecting a plan he supported to hike the federal gasoline tax by a nickel a gallon. The vote was 339-82 against increasing the current tax of four cents a gallon.

A proposed tax hike of four cents also was defeated, 370-52.

The House took these other actions:

—Rejected by voice vote a proposed four-cent increase to 11 cents in the tax on gasoline for private aircraft.

—Killed, 226-190, a proposal to earmark crude oil tax revenues for support of Social Security benefit payments.

—Voted, 223-198, against a proposed return, or "plowback," of some of the tax revenue to certain oil companies as an incentive for exploration.

The plowback amendment was managed by Reps. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., and James R. Jones, D-Okla. They argued that some oil companies lack the money needed for aggressive exploratory drilling.

They said their proposal was carefully tailored to exclude the large oil companies. Instead, some $80 million in revenue would be divided among small independent companies in the first year.

Grants cover most of $49,000 cost

Major study to provide answers to city's sewage problems

A major sewer study of Sedalia and surrounding area, for which the balance of federal funds were received this week, will be the first step toward solving the city's long-standing sewer problems.

A $19,500 grant from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) was received this week, which brings to $36,750 the federal contribution toward the study, counting funds received earlier. The remainder of the total $49,000 cost of the study will be paid by the state and city.

Work on the study is expected to begin in the next three to four weeks, said City Engineer Robert Cunningham.

The study, which will take approximately one year to complete, will cover a 25-square-mile area outside the city limits and 10 square miles within the city, Cunningham said. It will extend west to Muddy Creek, south to Flat Creek, east to the Maplewood subdivision and north to Cedar Creek.

"The study will determine how the outlying drainage areas should be handled," Cunningham said. "As these areas develop, there will have to be finance its waste water treatment through general revenue.

The city originally requested the study in 1973 for an estimated $23,000 cost. In 1974, however, the Missouri Clean Water Commission authorized the city to expand the study beyond the city limits. This brought the cost of the study to $49,000.

Before the actual study can begin, certain "red tape" procedures must be completed, Cunningham said. For example, Burns & McDonald, the Kansas City engineering firm that will conduct the study, had to submit a revised contract to the city. This firm did some preliminary work on the project when the grant was first requested.

Also, because the original project began under another mayor, EPA requires a new resolution be passed by the city authorizing Mayor Allen Hawkins to sign any papers relating to the study. This procedure has been completed, Cunningham said.

All these steps should be completed in about three weeks, according to Cunningham.

Theologian says science may suffer downfall also

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Theology once reigned as "queen" of all intellectual disciplines, but it had to repent its predominating pretensions. Now, the overruling standard of thought is science. Does it, too, need to confess its inherent limitations?

Indeed, it does, says the Rev. Dr. Langdon Gilkey of the University of Chicago Divinity School.

He says the kind of absoluteness and sovereignty now claimed by science may lead to the kind of downfall and rejection suffered by religion for its past posture of authority over all truth.

"Queen religion," which held supreme sway over all fields of inquiry in the Middle Ages, was saved from total banishment only because theologians made a serious re-evaluation of it, he says, admitting its limitations.

As a result, it "has even undergone a recent resurgence and developed an appeal for modern man."

But the scientific method, he adds, still holds to its image of cultural supremacy as the sole source of valid information, but it, too, may be dethroned by the technological society it has created — and disappointed — unless it recognizes its limited, conditional role.

"Science and applied science — like every other aspect of human creativity — must learn to live and deal with the vast ambiguity of their own creativity," he says, lest it distort and obscure the wider reality.

Such awareness, he adds, probably is now as new and upsetting to "the scientist as it once was new to the priest."

But "the lesson of history, and now of the history of a scientific culture — and also the message of the Gospel — is that it is the very creativity of man that can spell his doom, that his knowledge can be turned into blindness, and his power into self-destruction," Gilkey says.

A Baptist professor of theology, Gilkey, 58, is author of numerous trenchant books, including "Religion and the Scientific Future" (Harper & Row), and "Reaping the Whirlwind" (Seabury Press).

His views on scientific predominance and its need for qualifications were first presented at a science and religion conference at Gustavus Adolphus College, and are included in a new volume, "The Future of Science."

Just as theology once was considered the reigning criteria and source of "true" knowledge, with all other disciplines seeking to incorporate its reasoning, he says science and technology now hold that encompassing sway.

Science "has determined education, molded our sense of human excellence, grounded our hopes for the future and established itself as the queen of all other disciplines of learning," he says.

Its objective techniques have become "the method" of inquiry by which all other methods of knowing have had to remake themselves and conform, or be excluded from academic standing or serious consideration.

But if it is to avoid the downfall that for years underdog religion the modern "queen science" is going to have to reassess some of its assumptions, Gilkey says, including these:

—That scientific discoveries are detached from their cultural context, although they actually are relative to it and to the accumulated store of human insights, and need to be supplemented and corrected by them.

—That scientific inquiry is the sole method by which men and women discover what is real — a view that strips nature of value and persons of their selfhood, depth and freedom.

—That scientific knowledge cannot be distorted or cause problems which can't be resolved by more science — an assumption now plainly erroneous.

"We now know that technology raises political, social, legal and moral problems on every front," Gilkey says. "Consequently, the proliferation and expansion of our technological capacities must be guided by legal, social and ethical wisdom if self-destruction ... are not to result."

Area women will attend convention

Mrs. Melvin Heimsoth, Mora, president of the Sedalia Zone Lutheran Women's Missionary League (LWML), has been chosen as one of about 4,000 delegates and guests to attend the league's national convention next week. Mrs. Walter Schumacher of Cole Camp will accompany Mrs. Heimsoth as a guest to the convention, to be held Monday through Thursday on the University of Wyoming campus in Laramie.

Special features of the convention will include special interest conferences and the celebration of the 35th anniversary of LWML, the women's auxiliary of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

The league raises over $500,000 each year for special grants in addition to local service projects. Delegates to the convention will vote on new projects for the coming two years and elect new officers.

An old art survives

The traditional craft of hand-making willow furniture is still practiced by Jack Whipple, 50, Staunton, Ill., and his family. Using a handful of simple tools including a small table saw, butcher knife, shears, a hammer and nails, Whipple transforms willow into chairs, tables, birdhouses and just about anything his customers order. He collects his willow from the swampy river bottoms near New Athens, Ill., to make his furniture. Although the furniture-maker said his trade is indeed rare, he sees it as nothing difficult or unusual. "My ma was really better at it than my dad. She could put together 10 or 12 chairs a day if she wanted," he said.

Lutheran group recommends tie

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The American Lutheran Church has recommended that a formal fellowship bond be adopted with the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, a splinter group from the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

In a unanimous vote, the ALC Church Council on Thursday recommended that the 1978 national convention take action to formalize the fellowship bond.

The AELC, the newest member of the North American Lutheran family, was established in 1976 by "moderates" who left the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod (LCMS).

The AELC, according to its president, Dr. William Kohn of Milwaukee, Wis., includes 218 congregations with a baptized membership of 102,500.

The AELC had declared fellowship with other Lutherans at its constituting convention.

Fellowship means that congregations may hold joint worship services, clergy may preach in congregations of the other church, members may commune at one another's congregations as guests, members may be transferred among congregations and clergy may be transferred when receiving a call in the other church body.

A declaration of fellowship requires a two-thirds favorable vote at a national convention, followed by ratification of two-thirds of all ALC congregations at their district conventions.

In related action, the ALC Church Council advised its representatives on the ALC-LCMS Commission on Fellowship to discuss the nature and basis of fellowship with LCMS commissioners.

Dr. David W. Preus, ALC president, said commissioners must decide if there is room for some diversity among churches in a state of fellowship, or whether there must be complete agreement in both doctrine and practice before there can be fellowship.

The Council's five-day meeting was to conclude today.

Sedalia women receive award

Three Sedalia women have been recognized for their achievements in helping to sell 22 million copies of The Living Bible.

Dorothy White, Norma Sumner and Agnes Calvert, employees of Maplewood Bible and Book Store, 114 East Fifth, were recently presented an award at the national convention of the Christian Booksellers' Association.

The three Sedalia women also recently attended a national trade show designed to acquaint Christian booksellers with new products and to help them better serve their customers.

Proposed book of worship is adopted

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Church Council of the American Lutheran Church (ALC) Wednesday voted unanimously to accept the proposed Lutheran Book of Worship.

The council rejected a plea by the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod (LCMS) that the ALC and two other Lutheran bodies participating in the book project delay publication for at least two years so the LCMS could review the book's contents.

The ALC council reaffirmed plans to publish the combined hymnal and service book in 1978 "under the auspices of as many participating church bodies as are willing."

The Executive Council of the Lutheran Church in America (LCA) and the Church Council of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada (ELCC) are expected to approve the book at meetings in September.

Just like a pro

Remember the good old days when dogs were content to roam the fields beside a barefoot boy, chasing a stick or a ball? Or joining in the fun at the old mill pond? Or just lazing it under the shade of a big tree, gnawing on a bone? Well, gone are those days. A new sport gaining popularity in canine circles these days is frisbee. Taking part in a local frisbee contest in Cedar Rapids recently is "Rocky," shown leaping into the air and latching onto one of the flying discs. (UPI)

Man shot, killed; suspect arrested

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A 20-year-old north St. Louis man was shot to death Thursday night as he was running along a street, authorities said.

The victim, Gregory Lee, was pronounced dead at a nearby hospital.

Police said Lee was seen running with a gun in his hand when he was hit by a shotgun blast fired by one of two men who were chasing him.

A short time later, police arrested a suspect in the murder. Authorities said the suspect was apprehended after he went to a hospital seeking treatment for a gunshot wound.

The suspect was hospitalized in serious condition.

No motive has been determined in the shooting, police said.

Jail escapees didn't stay free for long

STEELEVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Freedom didn't last long for a pair of inmates who escaped from the Dent County Jail Wednesday.

Paul Wilson Jr., 17, and Larry Schraeder, 32, both of Salem, were arrested Thursday after police spotted them hitchhiking along a Steelville road.

The men, both charged with burglary, had escaped from the jail by cutting a hole 16 inches square in the jail door with a hacksaw blade.

A man who allegedly gave them the blade, Joe Payne, 20, also of Salem, was arrested Thursday and charged with aiding their escape.

Payne was being held in the county jail in lieu of $15,000 bond.

$6 million in loans reviewed

ROELAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — State-appointed officials say they are investigating $6 million in ill-advised loans made by the Kansas Savings and Loan Association to two corporations controlled by directors and officers of the troubled financial institution.

Loans often far-exceeded the value of collateral, said Richard Carlson, a banking consultant assisting W. Craig Hutton, the court-appointed receiver for the S&L which was closed last week.

He said Kansas Savings lent about $1 million to the General Financial Corporation to construct an office building worth only $350,000.

Mrs. Clara Yarbrough is president of General Financial and Wendell D. Taylor is secretary-treasurer, according to records filed with the secretary of state. Both are directors of Kansas Savings.

Other loans were made to Investors Mortgage Bankers, Carlson said. The two firms own two-thirds of Kansas Savings' stock.

Carlson said loans similar to the one to General Financial amounted to about $6 million.

Carlson said of the $60 million in outstanding loans, $38 million were secured by single-family houses in the suburban Kansas City area and were probably sound. He said another $22 million was tied up in 15 commercial loans that are in various stages of delinquency. Another $7 million, he said, probably won't be recovered.

"Some of these loans just shouldn't have been made," Carlson said.

Depositors have filed a class action suit against Kansas Savings, its officers and several related firms. The S&L was closed last Saturday under orders from the Johnson County District Court and the Kansas commissioner of banking.

Family mourns boy's murder by homosexuals

TORONTO (AP) — Anger is running high here over the homosexual slaying of a 12-year-old shoeshine boy. For security reasons, spectators were barred from the court appearance Thursday of three of his accused slayers.

At the burial service Thursday in nearby Thornhill, the boy's father, Valdemiro Jaques, under prescribed heavy sedation, tried to throw himself on his son's coffin and had to be restrained.

Manuel Jaques' naked body was found Monday stuffed in a plastic garbage bag on the roof of a pornography shop in Toronto. He had last been seen July 28 when he left his shoeshine stand accompanied by a man.

Boys who were with Manuel at the shoeshine stand told police the man had offered him $35 an hour to help move photo equipment. Police said the boy had been drowned in a sink after being forced to take part in homosexual acts.

Appearing Thursday were Robert Wayne Kribs, 29, Josef Woods, 26 and Werner Gruener, 29.

They were arrested Monday on a Vancouver-bound train at Sioux Lookout, Ont., and returned to Toronto by plane.

They will appear again Tuesday with a fourth man, Saul David Betesh, 28, arrested Monday in Toronto. Betesh appeared in court earlier.

All four Toronto men are charged with first-degree murder.

As the three stood silently in court Gruener pulled out a Bible and read silently.

About 1,500 persons attended the burial.

Manuel's mother Maria, supported by family members, sobbed uncontrollably. "I can't bear it any longer," she said, falling to the ground. "I'll never see my beautiful son again."

More than 1,000 persons attended the funeral at St. Agnes church while 3,000 waited outside. The 250-car procession took 90 minutes to reach the cemetery.

"It's as if we all lost a son here today," said mourner Eduardo Pacheco. "This boy's death has done more to bring Torontonians together than any event I can remember."

Chamber protests proposal to close train depot here

A letter protesting the proposed reduction of services at the local Amtrak train station was sent to the Interstate Commerce Commission Thursday by Ed Kehde, president of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce.

Amtrak announced last week that it hopes to eliminate ticket sales and baggage service at the local station and hire a part-time employee to operate the station when the train stops in town.

In objecting to the Amtrak proposal, Kehde noted that Sedalia's population is approximately 25,000 and that it serves a "total retail market area population of over 90,000 and is on the grow." Within the next 12 months, Kehde added, "three new industries are scheduled to begin operation here, adding over 600 jobs to the labor market; in five years this total will increase to over 1,000 jobs."

Kehde also pointed out that the local Amtrak depot "served 985 more passengers in 1976 than in 1975 and has 209 additional ticket sales within that same period." Thus far this year, Kehde said, "all but two of the first seven months have shown increases (in ticket sales) over the corresponding months of 1976."

Receiving stolen property charged

A Sedalia man remained in the city jail at noon Friday pending his arraignment on charges of receiving stolen property.

William A. Piers, 29, 107 South Quincy, was arrested by Sedalia police at his home about 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Piers is charged with receiving a color television set, stereo, clock, .22 caliber pistol and two statues that were allegedly stolen from Kenneth Williams, Saline County. The arrest warrant also charges that Piers had knowledge the property was stolen.

Jobless rate improves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate fell to 6.9 per cent in July, resuming its downward course after rising the previous month, the government reported today.

Unemployment had risen from 6.9 per cent in May to 7.1 per cent in June after declining from a 1976 high of 8 per cent last November.

Labor Department analysts said that with the rate hovering close to the 7 per cent level for the past several months, the growth in the economy appears to have slowed temporarily following the sharp expansion earlier this year.

Some economists were expecting another rise in the jobless rate last month, but a sharp decline in the civilian labor force brought the rate down in July.

Civilian labor force, which includes those working and looking for work, declined by 340,000 last month with nearly all of the reduction occurring among teen-agers. The government said it was likely that the reduction in the labor force was due to the lateness of the survey week when the June figures were gathered.

"Thus, some youths who otherwise would have been recorded as July entrants were counted in June," the government said.

Vance, Hussein meet; Syrians reject plan

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance met with Jordan's King Hussein today on his quest for a "necessary consensus" for an Arab-Israeli settlement despite Syria's rejection of a U.S.-based meeting of Mideast foreign ministers.

Arriving in Jordan for talks with Hussein, Vance said the search for a "just and lasting peace remains at the top of the list in terms of our foreign policy priorities in the United States."

"We shall continue to work with other countries in the Middle East seeking to build the necessary consensus which will enable us to go to Geneva to negotiate a settlement," he said.

Vance met with Hussein at the king's new palace, Al Hashmeieh, 10 miles outside the city. Hussein's influence on the key Palestinian issue was reduced in 1974 when Arab governments meeting at a summit in Rabat, Morocco, decided to give the Palestine Liberation Organization sole authority to represent the Palestinians.

Vance flew in from Damascus, where President Hafez Assad turned down an Egyptian-American proposal for a conference of foreign ministers in the United States by the end of the year.

After meeting with Vance Thursday, Assad said it was "better to concentrate at this stage" on preparations for resuming the Mideast peace conference in Geneva where the "essential rights" of the Palestinians should be affirmed.

The proposed ministerial meeting would exclude the Palestinians.

The proposal had been the one solid result to surface from Vance's latest tour of Middle East capitals. U.S. officials privately claimed other negotiating accomplishments but refused to elaborate.

Vance was criticized today by the newspaper of Syria's ruling Baath Socialist party. Al Baath said Vance "came to us with so-called ideas for peace, accompanied by continuing occupation of Arab territory. He also came empty-handed of any idea on the rights of the Palestinian people."

Egypt had suggested the gathering of foreign ministers from Israel and its

More than 2,000 fight California forest fire

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 32,000-acre fire near Big Sur — the worst of more than 300 California brush and timber fires raging over 100,000 acres — "looks like it's going to be going for a while," a state forestry spokesman says.

More than 2,000 men were on hand to fight the 32,000-acre lightning-sparked blaze in the Ventana Wilderness of the Los Padres National Forest, said California Division of Forestry spokesman Brian Barrette.

In all, more than 8,000 fire fighters were spread across the state, including 3,500 Forest Service recruits from 48 states. They were being aided by 63 air tankers carrying fire retardant chemicals, 60 helicopters and more than 200 fire engines.

The Ventana fire, more than 20 miles long, will cause three watersheds in the wilderness to accumulate up to three times the normal amount of sediment, said Debbie Mitchell, a CDF spokeswoman.

She said that will increase water problems for areas of California already suffering from the two-year drought. She said that when vegetation is lost because of fire, not as much water can be absorbed into the underground water table. In addition, the burning vegetation pro-

There was little growth in the number of Americans with jobs last month, as total employment, at 90.6 million, was little changed from June after advancing for eight consecutive months.

Over the past year employment had grown by 2.8 million, with a 2.9 million increase in nonagricultural industries and a 140,000 decline in agriculture.

With the jobless rate falling back to 6.9 per cent last month, the total number of unemployed declined by 220,000 to 6.7 million.

Most of the drop occurred among teen-agers and adult women.

The Labor Department said the teenage jobless rate fell from 18.6 per cent to 17.4 per cent last month, its lowest point since October, 1974. However it was only white youths that benefited, as the rate for black teen-agers remained "extremely high" at 40.7 per cent, the government said.

Among other major groups in the labor force, the government gave the following breakdown:

—The jobless rate for adult men increased to 5.1 per cent in July from 5 per cent in June.

—The rate for adult women declined to 6.9 per cent last month from 7.2 per cent.

—Among whites, the unemployment rate dropped from 6.3 per cent to 6.1 per cent.

Arab neighbors in New York or Washington next month. Vance and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin endorsed the idea.

American sources said such a conference still could be held if Jordan agrees to the plan, but it would have little impact without Syrian participation.

Assad told a news conference after his talks with Vance: "Our brothers in Egypt perhaps saw certain benefits (in the plan) which so far we have not seen."

Considered the region's principal defender of the Palestinian cause, the Syrian leader voiced concern that the Egyptian-proposed meeting might be viewed as a "competitor" to a resumed Geneva conference.

The preliminary foreign ministers meeting would exclude the Palestinians, and thereby might enable the Arab and Israeli envoys to iron out less difficult issues under U.S. auspices.

Missouri's share is $17.3 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Missouri communities will get $17.3 million under the youth unemployment training program signed into law Friday by President Carter, Rep. Robert A. Young, D-Mo., said Friday.

The program, administered by the Department of Labor, will pay unemployed or underemployed youths, aged 16 to 21, from a poverty background to work on community projects, including parks, weatherizing low income homes and home security projects.

Beginning Oct. 1 St. Louis city will get $3.5 million; St. Louis County, $1.7 million; Kansas City, $2.9 million; St. Charles County, $386,000; Springfield, $408,000; Jefferson and Franklin counties, $715,000; Independence, $282,000, and Jackson County outside Kansas City, $184,000.

The state of Missouri will get $7 million to distribute to small communities throughout the state.

duces gases that are absorbed by the soil and block off part of the water table.

The affected watersheds include Carmel, serving 20,000 people in the Carmel Valley; Big Sur, primarily a recreational watershed; and Arroyo Seco, serving agriculture in the Salinas Valley. Water use will be impaired to users of all three watersheds, Miss Mitchell said.

The fire also was threatening structures at the small community of Tassajara Hot Springs, evacuated earlier this week, and a forest ranger station at Chews Ridge.

Barrette said the 20,000-acre Scarface fire near Canby in Modoc County was also burning out of control.

Other fires in the Modoc-Lassen area in northeastern California included an 8,000-acre blaze near the town of Bieber, the 6,000-acre Pondosa timber fire, a 7,000-acre fire near Mosquito Lake, a 1,600-acre fire near Egg Lake and at least 15 other fires from one to 400 acres in size.

A 3,000-acre timber fire near Eagle Lake was potentially a threat to 50 to 75 homes in the Forest Lakes subdivision near Susanville, Barrette said.

A 1,500-acre timber fire in the Plumas National Forest was being fought by more than 700 men.

—Unemployment among blacks and other minorities was unchanged at 13.2 per cent.

Nonfarm payrolls rose by 255,000 last month to a total of $2.4 million.

Nearly three-fourths of the increase occurred in the service-producing industries. But there was also a 70,000-job increase in manufacturing employment which has grown by a total of 750,000 since last October.

Employment in the construction industry increased by 35,000 last month, about half of the gain resulting from strike settlements. But there was a decline of 35,000 in mining employment, largely because of strike activity, the government said.

The average work week for nonfarm production workers edged down a tenth of an hour for the second consecutive month to 36.1 hours in July. Manufacturing overtime also edged down one-tenth of an hour after holding at 3.4 hours for three months. Both of these measures indicate slowed economic growth.

Average hourly earnings were $5.23 in July, up 2 cents from June and 37 cents from a year earlier. Average weekly earnings total $190.90, an increase of $1.26 over the month and $13.02 from the level in July 1976.

Congressmen near decision on farm policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees on federal farm and food-aid policy through 1981 today agreed to a provision that would sharply boost the price support on a crop if the government suspended exports of it because of short supplies.

They were moving rapidly toward completion of their recommendations for the final version of the omnibus measure before Congress' August recess.

The provision was a considerably softer version of the antiembargo section approved by the House, which the Carter administration said "would ruin our livestock sector overnight" by raising grain prices.

If supplies were truly short, prices would be above the support level that would be triggered, supporters said. If they were not and the embargo were more political than economic, the government would be discouraged from taking that action.

Brief embargoes in this decade of soybeans and, to Russia and Poland once, of wheat angered farm groups and became an issue in grain areas during the 1976 presidential campaign.

The conferees also dropped, at the request of the Mexican government, the State Department and southwestern congressmen, a House-passed requirement that the packing of imported tomatoes conform to rules for tomatoes packed in Florida.

A trade war between Mexico, the main country affected, and the United States probably would have followed adoption of the section sought by Florida congressmen, officials said.

Health Center tour times are set here

Tours of the new Pettis County Community Health Center, 623 East 15th, will highlight open house activities at the center, which will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday.

The tours will be led by members of the center's layman's advisory council.

The $78,756 building opened last January and serves as the headquarters for the county nursing service. It was funded by federal, county, local and private funds and is located on a tract of land donated by the city. The 2,700-square-foot structure has facilities for many nursing services and also a meeting room. It also is a center of public information on various medical problems.

Defense Department planning arms sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department says it is preparing to sell $343.8 million in weapons and other military equipment to five countries.

The Pentagon notified Congress it plans to sell Israel $102 million in armored personnel carriers, antitank missiles and support equipment.

South Korea would buy 48 UH1H helicopters and weapons, 15 tank recovery vehicle equipment, all totaling $53.3 million.

Switzerland would purchase $104.1 million in "Dragon" antitank missiles and support equipment, including more than 15,500 missiles.

Spain would get six antisubmarine helicopters and repair parts for $39.1 million.

Greece would buy 155 howitzers, 100 "Sparrow" air-to-air missiles and 11 recovery vehicles for $45.3 million.

Congress may reject any of the proposed arms sales.

Storm-damaged Sedalia home to be replaced

Arrangements to replace a home at 705 West Pettis, owned by Mrs. Janie Lyles, which was destroyed in the May 4 tornado, were completed Friday morning at a meeting of representatives of various agencies involved in relief efforts. The meeting was held in the Municipal Building.

Mrs. Lyles will receive $5,000 from the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) and $3,500 from the local community block grant program, with the remaining construction cost to be paid for by the Red Cross. Because community block grant housing repair funds cannot technically be used on new construction projects, the FDAA funds will be used to construct as much of the house as possible. Then, workers from the Missouri Valley Human Resource Development Corp. (MVHRDC), who perform all housing repair projects for the block grant program, will finish the work.

These workers are paid under the block grant program.

Lewis Curd, 608 West Pettis, will receive $1,500 from the block grant program for electrical work and $800 for plumbing work to restore his storm-damaged home. These projects will be subcontracted to local firms, block grant program director Tom Delph said.

Groups represented at the meeting included the city, the block grant program, Red Cross, Area Agency on Aging, Church of the Brethren, MVHRDC and the Division of Family Services. These representatives will continue to meet periodically to evaluate progress that is being made and to consider additional requests for help.

Prison compromise not seen as a problem

Roll call vote on tax

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Legislative leaders see no major hangups to acceptance of the proposed prison compromise by the full House and Senate when they convene in special session on Wednesday.

"I don't see too many problems on it," said House Democratic Floor Leader Joe Holt of Fulton. "I just wish they'd quit talking about a particular site until we get the bill passed. That does bother me a little."

Four attempts to locate a new medium-security prison in the Kansas City region have failed because of opposition from residents and officials of the areas involved. The local opposition precipitated an impasse between the House and Senate earlier this year that forced the special legislative session.

The compromise measure shifts consideration for the new prison to the St. Louis region, but already residents of two areas mentioned as potential sites—Potosi and Gumbo—have voiced opposition. Some lawmakers feel that could pose problems for acceptance of the compromise plan, but not ones big enough to jeopardize its passage.

"I don't sense any problem from the legislators on the prison issue," said Senate Appropriations Chairman Donald Manford.

"We probably have a sound approach in doing something in the corrections field," the Lee's Summit Democrat said. "I sense nothing but support from the other legislators on the compromise."

Legislative leaders also said they oppose the addition of any other issues like the renewed proposal for a referendum on the controversial Meramec Dam to the session's agenda.

Democratic U.S. Rep. Richard Ichord of south-central Missouri asked Gov. Joseph Teasdale last Monday to include the referendum plan in the session. His request for a limited public vote, criticized by a number of opponents to the dam, came after Congress agreed to halt funding for the project, which Ichord has strongly supported.

"I know Ichord would like to be taken off the hook, but we had those bills in last session and the same people who now say they want a vote were against them then," said Holt. "It's past us now. I don't think we need to take it up."

Teasdale has also been asked to include conflict of interest legislation, defeated in the last session, but again lawmakers were not enthusiastic.

"We've got enough controversy on the capital improvements bill," House

Speaker Kenneth Rothman said. "They should start working on their bills for next year."

The prison compromise calls for $25 million for construction of a 500-inmate medium security prison in the St. Louis area and $11.6 million for renovation and some construction at current prison facilities, including the main prison in Jefferson City.

The prison situation is the heart of the $120 million capital improvements measure for the present year. The inability of the House and Senate to reach agreement on the prison question led to the death of the entire bill during the recent regular session.

The House staunchly supported construction of a medium-security prison in an urban area, a plan that had gained legislative approval in both 1975 and 1976. But the Senate, breaking from that plan in mid-May, supported construction of a maximum-security facility in mid-Missouri.

"The prison compromise is going to be satisfactory," said House Appropriations Chairman Wayne Goode, D-Normandy, who led advocates of an urban medium-security prison to the stalemate with Manford's forces backing the rural maximum-security institutions.

The proposal, however, calls for at least $15 million more than either house had allotted for prison construction in their versions of the over-all funding measure during the regular session.

The additional amount for prisons means that some other projects may have to be cut or reduced and that could cause problems in completing legislative action on the bill.

"Some problems could result over other building requests," said Manford. "If we agree on the $36 million for corrections. The other projects in the bill will have to be readjusted."

Both the House and Senate appropriations staffs are reviewing the state's financial situation to determine the impact of the increased prison funding on the remainder of the bill and the state's budget.

Goode says he plans to hold hearings on the bill Wednesday and Thursday and floor consideration is scheduled to begin next Monday.

Children hurt by Air Force's plans

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bill Duff is wondering how he's going to break the news to three foster children, who have found their first real home, that he may have to move and they'll be recycled back through the county welfare department.

Winston Floyd had to sit down last spring and tell his daughter she should not try out for a coveted cheerleader position because he didn't know where she would be attending the ninth grade this year.

Mrs. Joyce Bevins had to tell her two youngest children this week that, with the start of classes just three weeks away, they are being transferred to a different school.

The Duffs, Floyds and Bevins are just three of thousands of people caught in the crossfire between city and county officials and the Air Force in a move to shift virtually the entire population of Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base to Scott AFB, Ill.

Most don't understand the legal mumbo jumbo in the news almost daily as the Air Force strains to free itself of Kansas City and city and county officials tug to hold on for just another day...week...month.

But many wish the "whole mess" had been settled two years ago. Harry Juvenal, a former civilian employee at the base, sold his Kansas City home and bought retirement property in Alabama. The plan was for Juvenal to move to Scott for one last year of work while his wife moved to Alabama.

The change in signals meant his wife was in Alabama while he moved in with his daughter's family in Kansas City, and later rented a home with a friend. He finally retired in disgust, "upset with the whole damn thing."

He said many of his friends are in the same boat, thanks to the off-again, on-again move.

"They don't know whether to move or not to move, whether to sell their houses, whether to move out of their apartments when their leases are up, whether to buy a trailer, whether to put roofs on their houses, where the kids are going to go to school — just all the questions that upset family life."

Or Raymond Dlugolecki, who is a communications specialist at the base. He sold his home in Grandview after the announcement 2½ years ago, and bought a home at Nashville, Ill., near where he thought would be his new job site.

As each day sprouted a new lawsuit, the Dlugolecki family, which includes five children, moved into a rental home near Grandview, later buying a home in Harrisonville. Some of their children attended school in Harrisonville while others went to Grandview — and all played the waiting game.

Or Orville Myers, a technical data adviser, who sold his home, rented an apartment, waited for months, then finally bought another home in Kansas City.

Just days before the shutdown was to begin in late July, U.S. District Court Judge William R. Collinson issued a temporary restraining order to prohibit the move before Aug. 17. On that date the just must either extend the order or issue a preliminary injunction if the move is to be delayed further.

In November 1974, the Air Force announced plans to transfer the Air Force Communications Service back where it came from four years earlier — the base southeast of St. Louis. Four months later the first suit was filed to block the move.

Floyd, a 17-year Air Force veteran faces the first separation from his family while serving in the United States. He says he can't afford to move them to more expensive housing at Scott until he's found the right property. Because of the uncertainty of a family move, he talked his 13-year-old daughter out of trying out for cheerleader last spring. Now, with the move languishing in the courts, he wishes he hadn't.

Mrs. Bevins, a secretary in the 1840th Air Base Wing, said the uncertainty of the last three years and a possible move was too much for her husband, Earl, who retired from civil service rather than face a move. She won't move even if the base does, but many of her children's friends will be leaving.

Because of a possible loss of 1,500 of the district's 4,600 students due to the move, the Belton School District last spring did not renew contracts of 42 teachers. Now, as the case remains entangled in the courts, the district is scrambling to rehire those 42 teachers, or find others to fill the bill.

The threat of a wholesale move has prompted the board to realign its elementary districts — throwing many pupils into different schools as the alignment was completed Aug. 2 for an Aug. 24 starting date.

Mrs. Jacquelyn Unger a government printing specialist, says about 90 percent of the people she talks to plan to leave their families in Kansas City and commute back and forth, just as she might do for a year or so. She wants her two children, a junior and senior at Belton High, to graduate there.

"They're pretty confused, just like most of the kids," Mrs. Unger says. "They ask why they say they're moving at one time, then they're not...why they're going back to Scott when they moved here from that base in the first place."

In a particular turmoil are the Duffs, who have four children of their own, plus three foster children — sisters 7 and 8, and a 14-year-old boy.

Duff, a safety specialist, has resolved to commute until the end of the school year, but would like for the courts to say yes or no on the move. The decision in the courts is compounded in the Duff household, where seven children wait to learn if and when they'll be split apart.

"We've got no chance of taking them with us," Duff said softly. "It's kinda sad, really...they've helped us and we've helped them."

Local drug problem reviewed

The drug situation in Sedalia is currently under control, but apathy could change this, Kiwanians were told Thursday.

"If we go to sleep, we can have the same problem in Sedalia we used to have," said Ron Hoskins, police narcotics officer.

Addressing the club at its luncheon meeting at the Bothwell Hotel, Hoskins said that while the "jury is still out" on the effects of marijuana, he does personally consider that it is a "springboard" to other drugs.

Hoskins said those opposed to the legalization of marijuana should make their feelings known to those in authority.

While marijuana may not be physically addictive, Hoskins said, it is psychologically addictive, which has the same result.

President Bill Mills introduced the program.

The Rev. Herman Hudson Jr., pastor of Wesley United Methodist Church, was a guest of Jim Rice.

Overkill in FBI raid on church

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
WASHINGTON — A federal judge last week cooled some of the FBI's flaming zeal against the Scientologists — and high time. Our government's continuing harassment of these oddballs is getting to be a matter of general concern.

Kilpatrick
What troubles me in this affair is the sheer, crushing power that our government can bring to bear when it chooses. Even if the Scientologists prevail in the end, they will have been put to stunning legal expenses. Their normal operations will have been disrupted for months. And all for what? Is the FBI's purpose prosecution or persecution?

The Church of Scientology is either (a) a religion, or (b) a tax evasion racket, founded by a Nebraskan named L. Ron Hubbard some 30 years ago. Hubbard's disciples, bearing titles of "the rev.," naturally contend that they have formed a bona fide church, precisely as the Catholics, Jews, Methodists and the Three Seed in the Spirit Predestinarian Baptists have created bona fide churches. The FBI, by contrast, appears to take the view that the Scientologists are a bunch of con artists, busily cheating the Treasury out of the taxes that ought to be paid on $100 million in annual revenues.

I am perfectly willing to plop down on the side of the Scientologists. Every organized religion has tenets that some skeptics will regard as mildly bizarre if not downright looney: The Catholic doctrines of bodily ascension and transubstantiation, the Faith Healers' doctrines of immunity against serpents, the Fundamentalists' giddy confidence that the world will end at such and such a date in 1981.

What is so different about the Scientologists and their E-meters? The E-meter, according to the papers, is a simple little device — any bright sophomore in high school could build one — used as an aid in ridding oneself of bad or painful recollections. The Roman confessional booth serves somewhat the same purpose. The Scientologists pursue a state of mind known as "clear." In other religions, practitioners seek a state of grace; the Buddhists seek nirvana. So far as the law of tax exemption is concerned, what's the difference?

The Church of Scientology reportedly has 24 churches in the United States, including the "founding church" out on S Street here in Washington. Its headquarters are in Los Angeles. The Internal Revenue Service has approved 13 of the 24 for purposes of tax exemption. The other 11 have not necessarily been disapproved; their status is quo.

Records now coming to light indicate that our government has been harassing the Scientologists for at least 20 years. The FBI has infiltrated some of the churches with covert agents; the FBI has cultivated informers and embraced apostates. Meanwhile, says the Department of Justice, the Scientologists have been doing the same things in reverse: They have infiltrated government offices, swiping documents and running their own little Watergate.

It is not easy to discern the truth, but the pattern of harassment is clear. Government agents staged a massive raid in 1963. They staged another one a few weeks ago. At 6 o'clock on the morning of July 8, roughly 134 FBI agents simultaneously hit the Washington, Hollywood and Los Angeles offices. They descended with crowbars, battering rams, sledge hammers and power saws. They invaded living quarters, where married members of the church staff were still in bed. FBI agents brought their own stenographers, even their own typewriters. For 18 to 20 hours, they ransacked church files, including files that deal with the church's pending lawsuits against the government. It was gangbusters all over again.

Overkill? That's how it strikes me. That's how it struck William B. Bryant, chief judge of U.S. District Court here. He ordered all the material seized in the Washington raid impounded. The FBI's warrant, in the court's view, was overly broad; the warrant amounted to a "general warrant," permitting the FBI to seize everything in sight. The government prosecutors are expected to appeal.

Let me come back to the main point. The main point is the monstrous power of the state, whose legal and financial resources are inexhaustible. When that power is fueled by animus — by spite and by malice — the machinery of tyranny begins to roll. Last month the Scientologists. Next month, who?

Totaling out in Sedalia

By DOUG KNEIBERT

One of the first things that struck me about Sedalia when I moved here 10 years ago was the large number of unmarked intersections in the city.

The same thing struck me last week, in the form of a Chevy pickup that reduced my prized little Audi to so much scrap metal. Poetic license aside, I actually struck it, but that's really beside the point.

What is the point is why, some 20-odd centuries after the invention of the sign, we still have so many uncontrolled intersections in Sedalia. Is there some sort of deep, dark plot afoot by the auto repair shops?

I lamented this fact to the investigating officer, who conceded the situation sure made his job a lot harder. He didn't write either of us a ticket, saying in so many words that unmarked intersections are a kind of No Man's Land, and the devil take the hindmost.

(The hindmost of my car, matter of fact, was left pretty much intact. It was the front end that looked like something left over from a demolition derby.)

The Citizens Traffic Advisory Committee is in charge of making recommendations for traffic signs, lights, etc. in the city, and I called chairman Bill Gogerty to find out how many intersections in the city remain unmarked.

I was surprised to find out from Gogerty that about 67 per cent still fit that category. He duly took note of my complaint, and said this is the kind of input he needs to reduce the problem.

Reduced it must be, for the present situation is clearly unacceptable. I'm surprised the insurance companies haven't stormed city hall by now.

I never tire of going to Arrow Rock, and managed a return visit last Saturday.

The food at the venerable Arrow Rock Tavern is better than I remembered it last time, and a nice cut of country ham can be had for a reasonable cost. Beef and chicken also are on the menu.

(Sedalians, in case you didn't know, have an extra good reason to feel proud about Arrow Rock. It was the local DAR chapter that was the prime mover in getting the state to buy the historic tavern back in the early 20s.)

We were up primarily for a performance of the Lyceum Theater. The cast did a fine job with Harold Pinter's enigmatic play, The Birthday Party. I was very impressed with the vastly improved quality of the acting, and during intermission director Henry Swanson told me the theater's affiliation with Actor's Equity this year was a big factor in this.

Susan Murray, a former faculty member at State Fair Community College and now of New York, was among the standouts in the Pinter production.

"The Gentleman's Magazine", introduced to the public in 1731, was the first publication to use the word in its new meaning, stating in its introduction that the publication was intended to "store up" a collection of various subjects, "as in a magazine."

Even-handed policy on dissent lacking

The Carter administration seems to be following something of a double standard when it comes to dissent from within.

Recall the cases of Generals Singlaub and Starry. The former told a reporter that the U.S. pullout from Korea could lead to war, for which he was summoned home and given a chewing out for publicly questioning official U.S. policy. Lt. Gen. Starry's offense was that he predicted in a speech an eventual war between Russia and Communist China, adding that in his opinion the U.S. would have to intervene in some manner to prevent one of the two Communist powers from emerging dominant from such a conflict.

The upshot of all of this was the following rule laid down by the administration: Differences of opinion are fine during the formative stages of a policy, but once that policy is set, dissent — especially public dissent — is expected to stop. Very well.

But what turns this policy on its ear is the current flap within the Carter administration over the President's stand on abortion. What started it was Carter's news conference statement that he agreed with the Supreme Court's latest decision to the effect that the states were not required to foot the bills for abortions for the indigent.

So here was a policy that had been both established by the highest court in the land and endorsed by the President. That would seem to settle it. But even Carter evidently wasn't prepared for the mini-rebellion that erupted within the executive branch and his own White House.

Some 40 women within the administration, reportedly including the secretary of housing and urban development and the secretary of commerce, met in the White House in protest to the President's stand. The effort was aided and abetted by one of Carter's close personal aides, Midge Costanza.

Now a petition is being circulated among these and others in the administration who oppose the President's abortion stand. Presumably this will be delivered to their boss.

By even the most liberal standards of an "open administration," this behavior is totally unacceptable. The President should draw the line firmly and without further hesitation, showing that those within his administration are expected to abide by the same rules he applies to his generals.

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The friendly folks who handle patronage at the White House have suddenly developed an extraordinary interest in an obscure federal appointment.

They are quietly grooming Patrick J. Delaney for a $50,000-a-year post on the Susquehanna River Basin Commission. As preparation for this high calling, Delaney has been a law school dropout, stock salesman, race track official and Richard Nixon fund-raiser, respectively.

There is a suspicion, however, that the Carter crowd is more fascinated with Delaney's connections than his resume. For he is the son of Rep. James J. Delaney, D-N.Y., the 76-year-old curmudgeon who heads the House Rules Committee. This committee determines what legislation will reach the House floor.

The White House is more concerned about the flow of legislation on Capitol Hill than the flow of the Susquehanna. And the 36-year-old Delaney might be able to influence the flow of the one if not the other.

His father, an old cahoot with an Irish flair for politics, believes in family planning. It used to be that a congressman could install a deserving relative on the congressional payroll. But the publicity has sent most relatives scurrying for other jobs.

Congressman Delaney, not one to let go of a government pay envelope easily, reportedly pressured ex-President Gerald Ford to appoint young Patrick to the Securities and Exchange Commission. A Senate investigation indicated that the congressman's son, however, knew no more about high finance than he does about water resources.

Sources familiar with the backroom politicking say that Delaney, the elder, tried valiantly to persuade senators to approve the nomination. But the outcry against Delaney, the younger, was so strong that President Carter withdrew the nomination not long after inheriting it from Ford.

The new President has become more impressed lately with Chairman Delaney's power over legislation. To placate the old man, Carter is now looking for a harmless spot for the jobless son. The Susquehanna River Basin seemed far enough away from Washington to satisfy the President's advisers.

There is one vexing problem. The commissioners are supposed to know something about water resources if not the Susquehanna itself. But apparently young Delaney's lack of qualifications is not regarded as an insurmountable obstacle by Hamilton Jordan, the President's top political aide. Jordan's office is trying to secure the $50,000 plum for Delaney.

Commented one congressional aide when he heard the White House was pushing Delaney for the Susquehanna job: Boy, it sounds like they have finally found some place they can put him.

Footnote: Congressman Delaney denied he had contacted either the President or Jordan about finding employment for his son. Jordan and young Delaney did not return our repeated calls. But a presidential spokesman said defensively: There are people in the White House who think Delaney is qualified for the job.

PERCY'S PROBLEM — The boyishly handsome Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., was once one of Israel's staunchest supporters. But somewhere on the road to Damascus, he saw a new light and, overnight, became one of the Arabs' biggest boosters.

His dramatic turnabout followed a visit to the Middle East, where he was wined and dined by the Arab potentates.

The senator was royally treated, for example, by Egypt's President Anwar Sadat. Thereafter, Percy emerged as a hero in the Arab world for changing his pro-Israeli stand.

Now the Illinois senator, professing his concern over America's increasing thirst for oil, has formed a nonprofit, educational organization that he calls Alliance to Save Energy. He has persuaded such luminaries as Gerald Ford, Henry Kissinger and Vice President Walter Mondale to lend their names to the alliance.

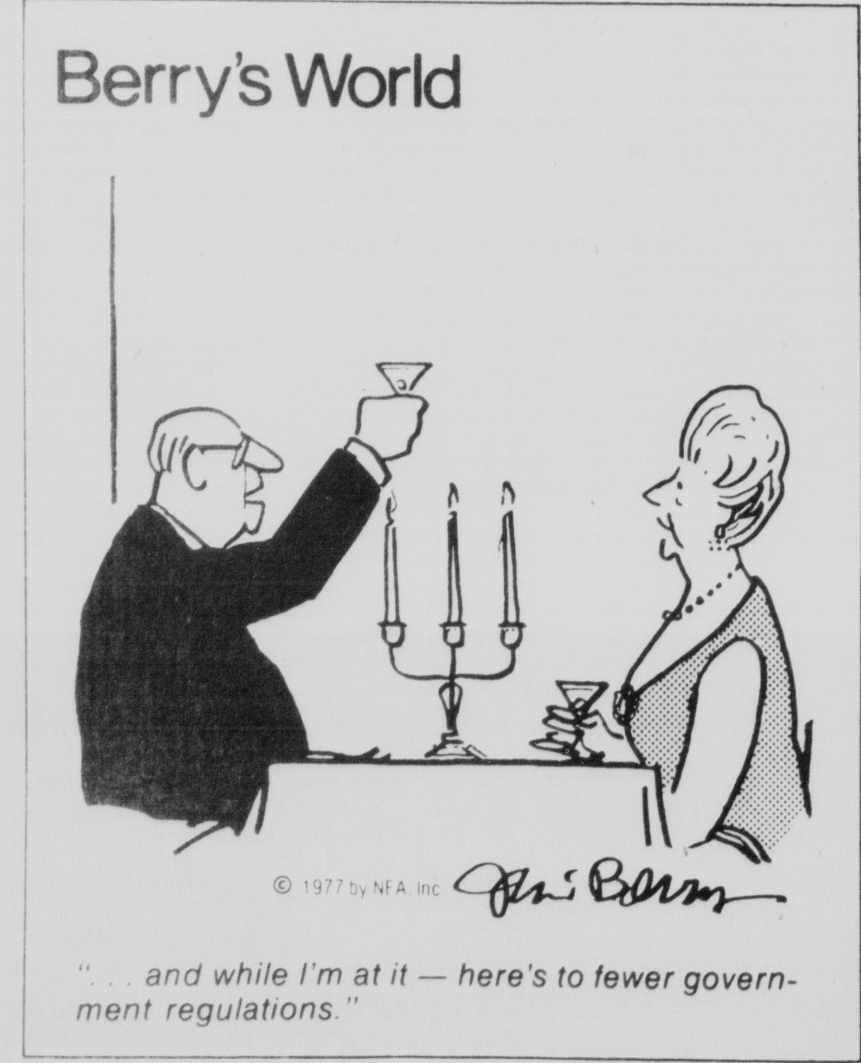

But some of the education it dispenses appears to have an Arab tilt. At a recent conference sponsored by the Alliance, for example, Percy was unrestrained in his praise for the Arabs. He even contended that Arab oil prices are too low and must be increased.

It should be newsworthy, therefore, that the oil powers are contributing to his nonprofit organization. He acknowledged to us that the shah of Iran donated $25,000, and that he expects money from Saudi Arabia and some oil companies.

Indeed, he acknowledged the Saudis have already donated the services of a consultant. But the consultant in question, former U.S. energy official Roger Sant, told us his work for the alliance was a personal contribution.

Percy told our reporter Bob Gettlin that he supported peace in the Middle East. "Just because we are getting funds from the Arabs is no conflict," he said.

Gura: 'We need a sweep'

Royals await Chisox after blanking Jays

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City's two-game sweep of Toronto not only kept the Royals in the thick of their division race, it also got the hitters and pitchers talking to each other again.

And they are talking about the Chicago White Sox, who open a crucial three-game series here tonight.

"We'll take 'em one at a time," Larry Gura said after hurling a nine-hit, 8-0 shutout at the Blue Jays Thursday night. "But we all know we need a sweep."

A sweep of the hot-hitting Sox, who whipped the Royals three out of four in Comiskey Park last weekend, would put Kansas City 1½ games behind Chicago in the tight American League West chase.

The Royals staggered home this week from a 1-5 trip in which they also dropped two games to the second-place Minnesota Twins. Every loss was the result of an opposing team's rally. The Royals hitters poured across 33 runs in the six games, but watched their pitchers give up 45.

To a man, the Royals feel they should have won at least three in Chicago.

"The hitters were pretty disgusted," said Fred Patek, who drove in four runs Thursday night with a homer and two sacrifice flies.

"We should have beat Chicago four straight and won at least one of the Minnesota games. We'd go out and score two or three runs and get ahead, then the pitchers would let them score three or four and we'd say, 'Well, we got to go out and do it again.' We'd do it again, and then fall behind again."

"Nobody was getting on the pitchers. They're grown men. They know what they're doing. We just weren't saying anything to them."

Second baseman Frank White, who left the game Thursday night with a slight hamstring pull after doubling and scoring, is hoping to hold the Sox to four runs a game.

"If we can do that, we can sweep 'em," he said. "Whoever gets the best pitching will win. We know our hitters can hit their pitchers."

George Brett, whose bat is smoking, smacked four hits Thursday night, the fifth game since July 27 in which he has collected three or more.

"If we had lost these two to Toronto, this team would have been at an all-time low," he said. "We were close to that when we left Chicago. Sure, we should have beat the White Sox all four up there."

"But now it's put up time. We've got one more shot at the White Sox. But even if we sweep them, we'll still have to beat Minnesota and Texas. There are four teams in our division playing well now. What we've got to do is win every game we possibly can."

Elsewhere Thursday night, Ferguson Jenkins of the Boston Red Sox posted his first victory in six weeks to give Boston a half-game lead in the American League East over Baltimore.

"Now I feel like I'm contributing," Jenkins said after pitching a three-hit, 3-1 decision over the Oakland A's. "Maybe this will help us put a big winning streak together."

Jenkins blamed his lack of aggression for the victory drought which began after his 7-3 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles on June 23.

"The team has been playing well," said Jenkins, "but I haven't."

Against the A's, he seemed to be as good as ever, though.

Petty gloomy after clocking

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Richard Petty didn't seem too excited after his qualifying run for Sunday's Talladega 500 Grand National stock car race.

"Do you need more horsepower, Richard?" "Do you need to work on the chassis?" "Do you need to put in a different gear?" he was asked.

He replied wearily, "What we need is a Chevrolet."

But his Dodge was faster than the trouble-plagued Fords, he was reminded.

"Yeah, but the Chevrolets beat me bad and we don't have any problems," Petty responded.

Then he noticed his speed of 188.664 miles per hour was not only 11th fastest, but also slower than that of Janet Guthrie.

As Petty walked toward his truck to leave, he said, "The doll outqualified me, didn't she?"

Yes, she did.

"I guess she outdrove me too," he said with a sigh.

Miss Guthrie was ninth fastest, at 189.391 m.p.h., in a Chevrolet. It was a closed course speed record for women, eclipsing her Indianapolis record of 188.957. Benny Parsons, fresh from his victory last week at Mount Pocono, Pa., won the pole position with a speed of 192.684 as Chevrolets swept the top 10 qualifying spots.

"The Chevy teams dominate," Parsons said. "And I feel like we've got one of the top Chevrolet teams on the circuit."

The Chevrolets, Dodges and Fords qualified in something like groups. Actually, only one of the Fords qualified at all on Thursday when the top 20 spots were taken.

The Mercury of David Pearson and the Fords of Buddy Baker and Dick Brooks all had to wait and try today for one of the final 20 positions for the $200,000 race.

"We got out this morning and ran about 177," said disappointed Pearson, who didn't even try to qualify Thursday. "Things have got to get better."

Neil Bonnett is hoping that, too. Practicing Thursday morning at "around 190" he only got 186.354 out of his Dodge in qualifying — a disappointing 16th. "We were thinking about the pole," he said disgustedly.

Technical problems kept Ron Hutcherson and Bobby Allison from qualifying at the speeds they had intended. Hutcherson couldn't qualify at all, actually, because NASCAR officials wouldn't approve his Chevrolet. Allison had to switch back to an old front end on his Matador after officials dug up a vague rule which says "no new equipment can be installed on cars after April 15."

"We'll race good come Sunday," Allison vowed.

What's up, Dock?

Texas pitcher Dock Ellis gives Chicago fans a dose of their own medicine during Thursday night's Rangers-White Sox game. The fans were heckling Ellis as he sat at the end of the dugout. The White Sox won the game 5-4.

White Sox 5, Rangers 4

Eric Soderholm doubled and scored the game's first run in the third inning, then singled and scored on a passed ball in the sixth with the run which lifted Chicago over Texas.

The triumph snapped a four-game Chicago losing streak and halted a five-game Ranger winning streak as the White Sox pulled 3½ games ahead of second-place Minnesota in the American League West.

Tigers 4, Twins 2

Rookie right-hander Dave Rozema won his 11th game with a six-hitter, leading Detroit over Minnesota. Rozema, 11-4, who turns 21 today, pitched his sixth straight complete game. Minnesota starter Pete Redfern hurled 62-3 innings and suffered his seventh loss in 11 decisions.

Rusty Staub knocked in two runs for the Tigers, with a grounder in the third and a homer in the sixth. His home run, No. 13 for the season, provided the Tigers with a 3-1 lead and their eventual winning run.

Braves 5, Expos 2

Biff Pocoroba smashed a home run and Atlanta erupted for four straight singles and three runs in the third inning to beat Montreal.

Eddie Solomon, 3-1, who worked out of an eighth-inning, bases-loaded jam, was the winner with relief help.

Atlanta broke the game open in the third by scoring three runs on singles by Rowland Office, Barry Bonnell, Willie Montanez, and Jeff Burroughs and a run-scoring groundout by Garry Matthews.

Phillies 2, Padres 1

Bake McBride singled home pinch-runner Jerry Martin in the 10th inning to lead Philadelphia over San Diego.

Ted Sizemore opened the 10th with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice by pinch-hitter Tommy Hutton. McBride then grounded a single through the middle, scoring Martin, who had gone in for Sizemore.

Philadelphia reliever Tug McGraw, who worked three scoreless innings behind starter Larry Christenson, earned his sixth victory against two losses.

Oilers recall Culp off list

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (AP) — Middle guard Curley Culp has been recalled from waivers and Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips says there will be no attempt to trade him.

Phillips confirmed that Culp's name was placed on the waiver wire Wednesday but was removed Thursday. Phillips said this is a fairly common practice in the National Football League.

"Being on the waiver wire doesn't mean anything," Phillips said. "He was put on the wire to see how much interest there was in him."

"There's a big difference between being on the wire and being waived. I can assure you we won't waive Curley Culp."

There were reports Thursday that Culp had asked to be waived and he would not comment on the matter.

"Ask Bum the questions," he said.

Elder parlays spouse's advice into one-stroke Hartford lead

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Lee Elder parlayed a putting tip from his wife and "a little change in my swing" into a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $210,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament.

"Now I've got the lead, the other fellows have to catch me. And if I can just go out and do again what I did today, I ought to be able to run and hide from them a little bit," said Elder, who scored 10 "3's" on his way to a gaudy, seven-under-par 64 Thursday.

Reminded he'd almost won twice in this tournament, once finishing third and once losing in a playoff, Elder grinned and said:

"I just want to get rid of the 'almost' and go ahead and win it."

He credited a putting tip from wife Rose, delivered last week in Vail, Colo. while he was playing in a pro-am event that also included former President Ford, with a major assist.

"She noticed I was taking the club back outside the line," Elder said. He corrected the fault and had nine one-putt greens on the friendly 6,598-yard Wethersfield Country Club course that, as usual, gave up some of the lowest scores of the year.

Six men—Curtis Strange, Kermit Zarley, Dick Mast, George Burns, Jim Simons and Terry Diehl, the first-round leader a week ago in Philadelphia—were locked at 65, only one stroke off the pace.

Lee Trevino, a front-running winner in the Canadian Open in his last start, topped another group at 67, only two shots back in the chase for a $42,000 first prize.

PGA champ Dave Stockton had a 67, U.S. Open titleholder Hubert Green 68, Johnny Miller 70 and defending champ Rik Massengale matched par 71.

More than half the field of 156 broke par in the ideal playing conditions, mild temperatures with just a hint of breeze, and more than four dozen players had scores in the 60s.

The scores were so low Massengale faces the need for a score better than par in the second round if he is to survive the cut when the field is trimmed for the last 36 holes.

"It's a frustrating course," said Diehl, who didn't make a bogey and didn't have a "5" on his card. "You may be playing pretty good, then look up at the leader board and see somebody 100 under par and then you miss a couple of little putts and it's pretty frustrating."

Elder, who has won two tour titles and gained international attention as the first black to play in the Masters, avoided those frustrations, however. The change in his game helped, he said.

"For a while I'd been trying to cut the ball. Finally, I decided to go back to the draw, the shot that I won a lot of money with. I feel a lot more comfortable with it," he said.

He played the front nine three under par, then swept into the lead alone with birdies on four of five holes starting on the 11th. He capped it off with a 15-foot birdie putt, his longest of the day, on the 15th.

Chet responding at bat

Lemon no lemon in '77

CHICAGO (AP) — The "nightmare" behind him, Chet Lemon is rapidly moving toward becoming the "player I know I am."

No longer burdened by learning an unfamiliar position and nagging injuries, the Chicago White Sox center fielder has regained the confidence which sent him to the big leagues as an infielder.

His improvement is considered a major reason why the White Sox are leading the American League West, instead of trailing the pack like the preseason pundits predicted.

"Last year was a nightmare. Every time I turned around I had a new injury and the old one never healed," said Lemon, now in his second full year in the majors. "I was playing a new position, but I was pleased with my fielding."

It was my hitting which disappointed me."

"Playing center field here (Comiskey Park) was a big adjustment. Its the biggest outfield in baseball. I played the position like a wild man last year. Even before a game started, I'd go out and run around and tire myself out. And then the injuries would hit," said Lemon, who, nevertheless, tied for second in fielding percentage among American League outfielders with a .992 mark in 1976.

"I've learned to pace myself. You can't go out and run, run, run all the time because its a long season. Sometimes you have sit down in the clubhouse and take it easy for awhile. I'm doing that this year and I think it's helped me stay healthier."

Lemon's fielding has fallen off from last year when he had only three errors while handling 368 chances, but his hitting in 1977 is vastly improved.

In his first full season in 1976, Lemon hit .246 in 132 games with four homers and 38 runs batted in. Through 103 games this season, the 22-year-old center fielder had committed nine errors, six more than a year ago, while batting .287 with 15 homers and 44 runs batted in. He's also scored 67 runs, compared to 46 in 1976.

"I'm pretty content, but not overwhelmed with the season I'm having," said Lemon. "The important thing is that we're winning and I feel I'm contributing."

While admitting he's doing better statistically, Lemon says he won't be the "player I know I am," until his batting average rises to around .300 and remains there.

Chiefs' Lee more than just a big man

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The word follows Willie Lee like a shadow. The word is awe. So is the size of Willie Lee's shadow.

"Have you seen Willie Lee?" a secretary asked visitors last year the day the Kansas City Chiefs brought in their rookies.

"He's awesome."

A traveling columnist stopped at the Chiefs camp last summer and met the 26-year-old defensive lineman.

"Willie Lee," he wrote, "is awesome."

On paper, Lee's dimensions of 6-foot-5, 260 pounds do not seem unusual. Just another NFL behemoth.

Then you shake hands and feel his index finger curl around your elbow. The Chiefs, who have been in the business of outfitting football players for 17 years, had no shoes big enough for him. Several pairs of size 16½ EEEE were ordered special.

There was just one aspect of Willie Lee last season that was not awesome — his effectiveness. Lacking technique and unschooled in the wiles of professionals, he played sparingly while the Kansas City defense sagged to 27th in the 28-team league.

But if dedication and raw power are factors, that will change this autumn.

"Nobody in the NFL," says Head Coach Paul Wiggins, "is working harder than Willie Lee. I mean it. The guy's out there every day giving it everything he's got."

After two years of service football, Lee enrolled at tiny Bethune-Cookman College in his home town of Daytona Beach, Fla. The Chiefs drafted him in the fifth round as something of a gamble. His strength was unquestioned. But bigger men than Willie Lee have been unable to make the adjustment.

His most immediate problem, ironically, is his immense size. From habit, he stands straight up in an effort to simply overpower the men in front of him.

"He wants to stand up and King Kong everybody," Wiggins says. "We're working with him to keep down low on the blockers. But it's not as easy as it sounds because he's breaking habits and patterns that he's had for years."

But if the Chiefs are to regain defensive respectability, Lee must come through.

"Willie," Wiggins told him early in training camp, "It's a good thing I'm not your line coach because every time you stood up like that I'd be swatting you over the head with a two-by-four and by now you'd be about 4-foot-7."

"I've played against big men all my life," Lee says in a voice that is soft and reflective. "Always before, my strength got me by. But now I know my strength's not good enough by itself."

"Coach Wiggins is a good man. I want to do as good as I possibly can for him, because he's got faith in me. He tells me I can be a great lineman, and I believe him."

One day recently Wiggins was watching the defensive team go through drills.

"Willie," he yelled, "I'm going after that two-by-four."

The next three plays Lee kept his body low.

"Then a few minutes later I looked and there he was, standing straight up again, trying to King Kong it," Wiggins said.

As he walked off the practice field one day this week a group of youngsters surrounded the huge man and asked for his autograph.

"Hold out your hand," ordered a girl about seven.

Lee obliged.

"Wow," she yelled. "His hand's as big as my head!"

'Zark' to debut for grid Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Quarterback Jim Hart will be in his usual No. 1 role for the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night, with his heir apparent in reserve.

Anxiously awaited by the Cards is the debut of Steve Pisarkiewicz, a rifle-armed passer scheduled for backup when they face the Atlanta Falcons in a National Football League preseason opener.

"It's going to take time," said Pisarkiewicz, who was chosen by the Cards in the first round of last spring's NFL draft to understudy the 33-year-old Hart.

"There's a lot to learn," he explained. "From what I can tell, the hardest aspect of being a professional quarterback is the mental one. It's a matter of experience and, especially, reading keys."

Cards Coach Don Coryell, noting that Hart has been nursing a sore arm, said Pisarkiewicz will be used in relief along with Bill Donkers, a second-season vet, and free agent Mike Wells.

"They've all thrown well in practice," said Coryell. "For Steve, as well as Mike, it's just a matter of getting used to our patterns. We know what Donkers can do."

The NFL's best protection, an offensive line spearheaded by Dan Dierdorf and Conrad Dobler, will ease the pressure during Pisarkiewicz's bow.

Meanwhile, in an effort to shore up their defense, the Cards will test a parade of newcomers which includes linebackers Kurt Allerman and Andy Spiva.

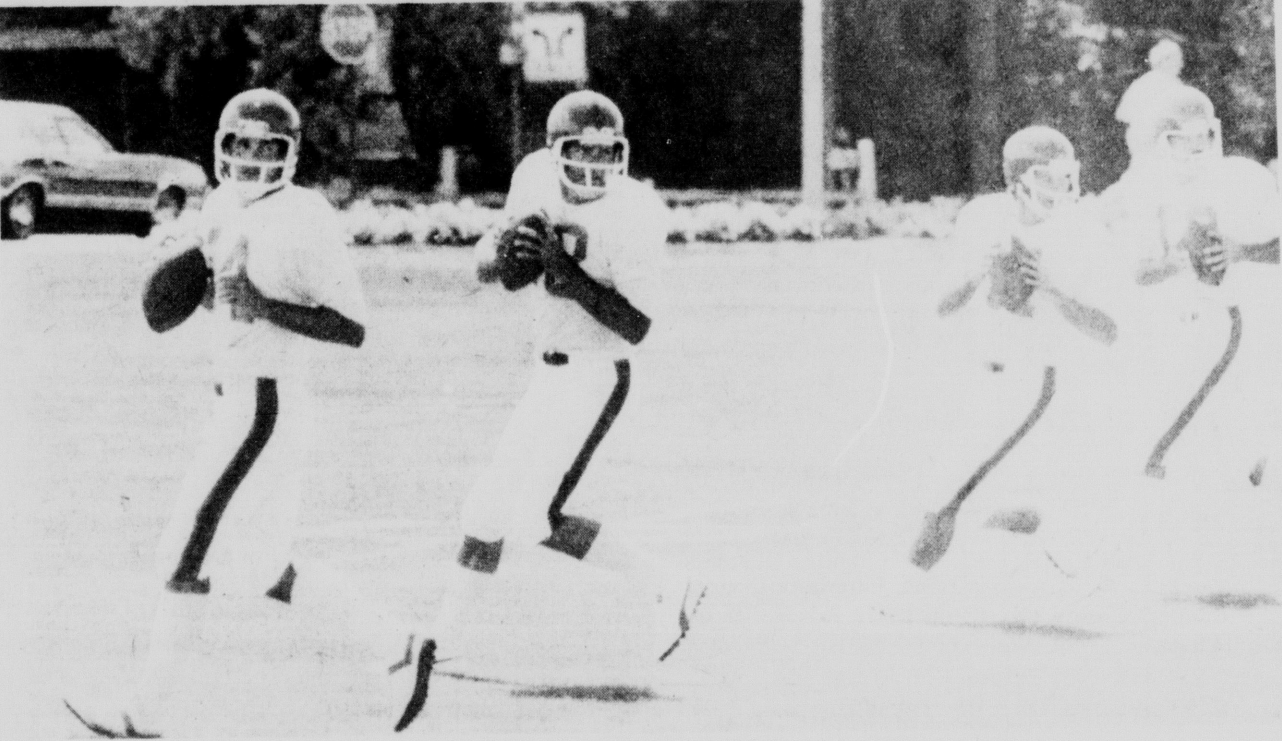

"We have many inexperienced people, but we hope their enthusiasm and hard-hitting will make up for it," said Coryell of his linebacking corps. "We just have to do everything we can to improve."

St. Louis, which posted a 10-4 record but missed an NFL postseason playoff berth last year, will face a Falcons team which is rebuilding under new Coach Leeman Bennett, a former Cards aide.

Among top priorities in the Atlanta camp has been the reconstruction of a defense which in 1976 yielded 4.5 yards a rush during a 4-10 campaign.

Coryell, who labeled the Cards "reasonably healthy," listed middle linebacker Tim Kearney as his team's only doubtful starter with a pulled groin muscle.

Center Jeff Van Note and running back Bubba Berra are injured for Atlanta and will not play in the 7 o'clock, CDT, contest.

Denver double duo

NFL exhibitions open

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Winning isn't everything — and if you're a holdover from last year's Philadelphia Eagles, it isn't anything.

During the National Football League's 1976 exhibition season, the Eagles played six games and won exactly none of them. That didn't get them off on the right foot when the games counted. They wound up 4-10.

So for Dick Vermeil, starting his second year as Philadelphia's head coach, tonight's game against the New York Jets signals a fresh start. And although he doesn't consider victories absolutely essential, he admits they could do wonders for the Eagles' hopes.

"Winning a few is always important for any team like ours that's been down for many years," says Vermeil.

In tonight's other game it's Baltimore at Denver. On Saturday it's Minnesota at Los Angeles, Miami at Tampa Bay, Atlanta at St. Louis, New Orleans at Chicago, San Diego at Dallas, New England at the New York Giants, Buffalo at Pittsburgh, Kansas City at Detroit and Cincinnati at Green Bay. On Sunday it's Seattle at San Francisco and on Monday night it's Houston at Oakland and Washington at Cleveland.

It's not as much of a fresh start as it is an attempt at rebounding for the Jets. They got their exhibition season started a week early—and it started on the wrong foot with a 20-6 loss to the Chicago Bears in last Saturday's Hall of Fame game.

"No way I'm going to get discouraged, no way," Jets Coach Walt Michaels said. "Sure I was disappointed in the turnovers (six of them), but I was satisfied with the rest."

Denver should have a nice free-for-all ming for a while over the starting quarterback job with the departure of Steve Ramsey to the Giants. Craig Morton, who came to the Broncos in that swap, Craig Penrose, Steve Spurrier and Norris Weese will all be trying to show their stuff against the Colts.

One of the biggest quarterback stories, of course, will be played out in Los Angeles where Joe Namath will be making his debut for the Rams following his dozen years as Broadway Joe of the Jets.

For Tampa Bay's Buccaneers, last year's preseason was a rousing success compared to Philadelphia's showing, considering they were 1-5 (beating Atlanta 17-3). Of course, things went downhill after that, with the Bucs careening to an 0-14 record when the games counted.

They hope to get off on the right foot this time against the team which is sure to become their traditional rival, Miami, looking to do a bit of rebuilding after its first losing season since 1969, had to struggle last year to beat the lowly Bucs 23-20.

Rosewall, Connors on to quarterfinals

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. — Veteran Ken Rosewall won a marathon match against 23-year-old Bernard Fritz of France 6-7, 7-6, 6-4 to advance to the quarterfinals of a $125,000 international tennis tournament.

Also advancing to the quarterfinals were top-seeded Jimmy Connors who easily defeated Zan Guerry of Chattanooga, Tenn., 6-2, 6-2, and second-seeded Brian Gottfried who eliminated 10th-seeded Bob Lutz 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Peggy Bond takes A Flight honors

Mrs. Peggy Bond, Southern Hills, took top honors in a Flight competition at the Central Missouri Women's Golf Association annual tournament held Tuesday and Wednesday at the new Country Club of Missouri course in Columbia.

She carded an 81 over 18 holes.

Education first for tennis star

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There will be a slight postponement to John McEnroe's professional tennis career. He's going off to college.

The college experience, a four-year down payment for America's career-minded youth, will keep McEnroe from becoming a millionaire for just a little bit longer. And that's not a bad thing at all.

"I still think it's a good idea to go," said McEnroe, a Wimbledon semifinalist who will be serving and volleying for Stanford University this fall. "I'm in no rush. The money is something I really don't worry about. I've never seen that much money, and it doesn't matter that much to me right now."

It's refreshing to hear an 18-year-old talk like an 18-year-old. Too often in the world of fun and games, the athletes aren't having a lot of fun. Somewhere in between playing tennis for the love of the sport and playing it for the accountants, there is a gap.

The gap is called being a normal, fun-loving teen-ager, an experience some athletes never have. A Swedish journalist who has written a book about Bjorn Borg says Borg grew up too fast.

"He went from a child to a grown-up," says Lennart Erickson, Borg's coach. "He never was a teen-ager. Sometimes I feel sorry for him. He's too serious for a boy his age."

McEnroe drew raves for his tennis at Wimbledon, where a loss to Jimmy Connors kept him from the final round of the world's most prestigious tournament. But McEnroe also drew criticism for his on-court behavior. His sins? An occasional tossed racket or a naughty word. In the tennis world, the emotionalism of a teen-ager is a crime.

Speaking of college, "I'll get plenty of competition," he says. "I'll get better practice at Stanford than I did in New York last year."

"A lot of people said I would be crazy not to go professional right now. They just couldn't see the other side. I listened to my parents and (tennis player) Gene Scott. I listened to everyone. But basically I made the decision on my own."

"I think I'd do all right on the pro circuit," he says. "I wouldn't be getting into the semifinals every week, but I'd be able to hold my own."

Oldster running strong

KNOX, Ind. (AP) — Everett Amos has found his own prescription for staying healthy—running 50 miles a week even though he's 75 years old.

Amos, a dentist, didn't begin running until 1968 when he semi-retired from his practice. Last year, he ran and walked a 26-mile stretch for the first time. And this year, Amos completed the Boston Marathon in less than six hours.

"That was hard," admitted Amos, who may have been the oldest man ever to complete the event. "The race is a lot of hills, and when I was through, I could hardly make it up a flight of stairs. In fact, a couple of other runners had to help me pull my sweat pants over my shoes."

Amos said he began running after noticing some muscle deterioration when he was 65. "I decided I wasn't going to put up with this old age business."

He began by running in place just one minute a day and later moved to a treadmill. After some prodding from his physician and a fellow runner, Dr. Howard Henry, Amos started running outside.

"I found out I had all kinds of pain," said Amos. "But I started being able to make three or four miles and kept going from there. I remember the first time I ran 11 miles—I thought I was going to die."

When the doctor ran his first marathon last year, his wife, Martha, immediately had Dr. Henry check his condition.

"You make sure there is nothing wrong with him," she said, greeting them with a stethoscope.

"I think that his running is wonderful now," said Mrs. Amos. "He was really falling apart before he started running. Now, look at him—look at that shine in his eyes."

The belief in staying in good physical shape has enabled Dr. Amos to stay active as a dentist.

"I work a day and take a day off. I don't over

WANT ADS SELL

The Sedalia Democrat, Friday, August 5, 1977-13

Don't let the energy crisis squeeze you into a small car.

Rabbit

On the outside, a Volkswagen Rabbit may look like a small car. But inside it's another story altogether. Believe it or not it has (incredibly!) more room for people than 30 other cars in its class. And (shockingly!) more room in its trunk than 59 other cars—including Cadillac Seville. Why not visit us and see how it measures up for yourself.

*EPA estimates, std. trans. 24 MPG city, 38 MPG highway. Mileage will vary depending on how and where you drive, optional equipment, and cars condition.

Pat McCoy finds a better way

MOHLER, Ore. (AP) — Everybody should have an alternative road, Pat McCoy said, sipping contentedly, almost smugly. Everybody should have a turnoff route in case life's superhighway develops a rut.

Pat McCoy, a jolly good fellow with a face like a toby mug and the proper girth to match, discovered his alternative road while reading a book on his favorite subject. Its title: "Cheeses and Wines of France and England with notes on Irish Whiskey."

What more could a man ask of life, he mused, than to be winemaker — a winemaker in a cheese factory?

That was it.

He put aside his order pad and his artificial smile, he let his shoes go unshined, and he set upon a search. He traveled the Oregon coast, where he knew that cheese factories once proliferated. At Nehalem Bay, tucked in a hillside, he found one, abandoned. Perfect.

Today that former cheese factory is the Nehalem Bay Winery.

"I couldn't be happier. The wine is good. The profits are not bad. The scenery is excellent."

Pat McCoy will get no argument about the scenery.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D. Alcohol out for diabetics

Dear Dr. Lamb — My son has been a diabetic for 15 years, beginning at age 27. There is no family history of diabetes and he has never been overweight. He takes a daily injection of insulin.

In the early years of his diabetes, he occasionally suffered insulin shock. In later years, this has happened only infrequently.

At times, such as at parties or when with friends, he drinks freely of alcoholic beverages, but never to the point of being intoxicated. He says that the consumption of alcoholic beverages is not harmful to his diabetic condition.

He exercises regularly by jogging, riding a bicycle, playing basketball and other vigorous activities. He is in good physical condition, but recently has mentioned that he occasionally feels numbness in his extremities.

My wife and I are concerned about his frequent use of alcoholic beverages. We think that it may cause some complications or worsen his diabetic condition. We would like your opinion on this matter.

Sen. Weicker's wife is granted divorce

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Marie Louise Weicker has been granted a divorce from her husband of 24 years, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr.

Terms of the dissolution, granted by Superior Court Judge William J. Tierney Jr. on Wednesday, were not disclosed. A clerk said Tierney sealed the files at the request of both parties.

In the writ filed last December, Mrs. Weicker said the marriage "has broken down irretrievably" and that the senator's estate was worth more than $100,000.

She asked for an undisclosed alimony payment, child support and custody of at least one of the couple's three children aged 10 to 19.

Weicker, a Republican, gained national attention as a member of the Senate Watergate committee.

Haggard's son shot by a hitchhiker

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Marty Haggard, son of country-western singer Merle Haggard, was in satisfactory condition at a hospital here after being shot in the side by a hitchhiker.

Haggard, 19, was shot once and robbed of a small amount of cash by a man he picked up Tuesday night, sheriff's deputies said.

Nehalem Bay is an azure inlet among the timbered hills and crags of one of the most spectacular coastlines on the continent.

Whether those hills will produce grapes is yet to be seen, but their production of violet foxglove and crimson elderberry and a riot of other wild and beautiful growing things is astounding.

Meanwhile, Pat McCoy buys his grapes from Oregon's Hood River country, an equally scenic piece of northwestern geography sprinkled with roadside fruit stands which are impossible to pass up and never disappointing.

"I know you can grow grapes right here on the coast, though, and next spring I'm going to plant some. Right now I'm looking for just the right southwest slope. Won't that be pretty, a vineyard on a hillside? I want one just to look at.

"The climate is marginal, I realize. But for the truly great wines, the grape needs to struggle. We're at latitude 46. That's the same as Medoc. I wouldn't be surprised to see Oregon become the new France."

Pat McCoy, at 40, is nothing if not an optimist. But he is also a practical person. His choosing an old cheese house for a winery, for example, was logical as well as romantic.

"How do you make cheese? You take a liquid, ferment it, package it and age it. How do you make wine? Same way. I figured a cheese factory would be designed just right for a winery. At one time there were 21 small cheese factories in this county. When better roads were built they consolidated into one, down at Tillamook.

"By the way, do you realize that in one 23-mile stretch of this coast you find wine, cheese, some of the best seafood on earth and also a sausage plant? Do you know of another place with such a variety of native treats concentrated in so small an area?

"That's another reason I chose this area. I like good food and drink. I knew that if I looked at enough of those abandoned cheese plants I would find just the right one, and I did."

Chemical plant may be cause for sterility

LATHROP, Calif. (AP) — The men noticed it first, swapping stories over lunch at the chemical plant where they worked in this tiny central California town. None had fathered children lately.

That was a few years ago. Today, part of the Occidental Chemical Co. plant is closed and doctors are scrambling to figure out what has made several young workers sterile.

Twenty-six men work in the section of the plant which makes farm chemicals. According to a company spokesman, 23 of the men agreed to tests a month ago after initial studies raised questions about their sexual fertility. Eight of them had already had vasectomies.

But James Lindley, Occidental vice president and Western Division manager, said that of the remaining 15 men tested, 10 were totally sterile or had almost nonexistent sperm counts.

"At this point, we just don't know what the cause is," Lindley said Wednesday. Most of the men are in their 20s and 30s and had fathered children before they started to work at the plant, he said.

According to William Steffan, head of the Occupational Health Branch of the California Department of Health, the prime suspect in the baffling sterility is a soil fumigant called DBCP (dibromo and chloro-propane).

Steffan declined to pin definite blame on

Pete Fountain will move out of area

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — After 20 years as one of Bourbon Street's prime attractions, clarinetist Pete Fountain is moving his club out of the French Quarter because of a dispute with his landlord.

Fountain's attorney, Steve Plotkin, said Wednesday that Fountain and his band would open a new club inside a hotel on Sept. 1.

The owner of Fountain's French Quarter Inn is suing to evict the musician because he says he hasn't paid the $3,250-

Needless terror

An anguished mother rushes through the fiery ruins of her home in San Jose, Costa Rica, in a desperate search for her two-year-old child. She feared the child was dead, but fortunately the youngster had already been rescued by neighbors before the mother reached the scene of the blaze.

Warrants are issued for gang rape

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Warrants have been issued for four men in connection with the alleged March 30 gang rape of a coed in Kansas State University's athletic dormitory. The action follows the dismissal Wednesday of rape charges against former K-State football player Roy Shine of Compton, Calif.

In announcing the issuance of warrants Thursday, Riley County Atty. Dennis Sauter declined to comment on whether the four were teammates of Shine and Jerome Holiwell, a KSU freshman running back and the first man charged in the incident. But Sauter did say that the four accused knew Holiwell.

Sauter said that one of the men is in Kansas, one in Texas and another in Illinois. The fourth has not yet been located, he added.

Sauter also declined to comment on whether the issuance of the warrants was the result of Holiwell turning state's evidence, as had been rumored since Wednesday.

Both Holiwell and Shine were scheduled to go on trial in district court in Manhattan next week. It was not certain what the latest turn of events would mean for Holiwell.

Sauter would say only that charges against Holiwell were "pending."

Polly's pointers

Acid gets rust off cement step

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those makers of soap and cleansers who put too much foaming agent in their products. It does not aid in the cleaning process and we have to use more of our precious water to wash these suds away. — BETTY D.

DEAR POLLY — I would like to tell the reader who wanted to keep a slate surface clean and shiny that when we had our fireplace put in we were told to use mineral oil on the slate. Just rub it in with a cloth and then wipe off the excess to have it clean, shiny and not oily looking. (Polly's note — Some professionals recommend using linseed oil this same way.) — SUE.

DEAR POLLY — I have found creamy toothpaste is excellent for cleaning slate table tops, etc. Squeeze some toothpaste on a damp cloth and rub and then wipe off thoroughly with another damp cloth. This also can be used for cleaning other surfaces such as plastic shoes and purses. — VIVIAN.

DEAR READERS — I have been advised that cleansers can be used on slate surfaces that have a real build-up of scum, dirt or whatever but toothpaste would be even less abrasive. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — After I have my drapes cleaned I hang the panel that was on the left on the right side of the window and the former right panel on the left side. This way the drapes wear more evenly and the same side is not always exposed to the sunlight. Of course, this can only be done if the pattern in the fabric permits.

When my linen handkerchiefs wear thin I sew two of them together on all four sides so as to get more wear out of them. — MRS. S.D.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — Could you suggest a cleaner that would remove rust from a cement step as we have a bad habit of putting our snow shovel on the steps and have had no luck removing it. — MRS. C.L.

DEAR MRS. C.L. — If a commercial rust remover has not removed the stains you might try oxalic acid. It could be applied to a cheesecloth poultice and left on for a while. When stain disappears, wash off thoroughly. I always hesitate to recommend such a drastic treatment as this is a POISON and not recommended for use where children or pets may be. Unless the poultice is carefully watched it might be covered with something too heavy for a child or animal to move. — POLLY.

Earl Holliman

Earl Holliman is a paradox. As Sgt. Bill Crowley on NBC-TV's 'Police Woman' he projects the image of a rough-tough, steely-eyed cop. But at home he is the tender, loving caretaker of five orphans, all abandoned dogs he has rescued and brought back to good health.

As Vice-President of 'Actors and Others for Animals,' Earl works to promote zero population growth for animals and responsibility among pet owners.

Earl was six when he set his sights on an acting career, and by the time he was 13 he was a working magician's assistant. The Navy interrupted his budding career, but after being discharged he went to Hollywood where he studied drama at USC and at the Pasadena Playhouse, and landed his first two movie roles. One was as one of 1500 extras in 'The Girls of Pleasure Island' and the other was a one line part in a film called 'Scared Stiff.'

Since that time he has made 19 films including 'The Bridges of Toko-Ri,' 'Giant,' 'Gunfight at the OK Corral,' 'Summer and Smoke' and 'Don't Go Near the Water.' He received a Hollywood Press Association Golden Globe Award as Best Supporting Actor for his role as Katherine Hepburn's brother in the film 'The Rainmaker.' He has starred in three TV series, 'Wide Country,' 'Hotel de Paree,' and 'Police Woman,' and in the 'Playhouse 90' production of the two-man drama 'The Sea Is Boiling Hot,' with Sessue Hayakawa.

Earl has made guest appearances on many of the leading dramatic series on television in the past 10 years including 'Cannon,' 'Gunsmoke,' 'Streets of San Francisco,' 'The Rookies' and 'Medical Center.' As a guest on 'The John Davidson Show' he demonstrated his versatility as a song and dance man.

Holliman's stage experience includes appearances at Los Angeles' Mark Taper Forum in Tennessee Williams' 'Camino Real,' and at the Ahmanson Theatre in the role of Mitch opposite Faye Dunaway's Blanche in 'A Streetcar Named Desire.'

PBS in the spotlight

Piccadilly Circus

PICCADILLY CIRCUS, the weekly entertainment series featuring a variety of contemporary British entertainment, this week explores the world of the circus, Sunday, August 7 over PBS.

'The Circus Moves on in Calabria' captures, from an unusual perspective, performers whose artistry and way of life come from the most ancient tradition of entertainment.

For several months, a film crew lived and worked with a family circus in Italy which still travels to villages, setting up its tent for one or two night stands. The gypsy life revealed in the resulting documentary allows viewers to share in the joys and heartaches of this small, isolated family community.

"We all think of the circus, like its name, originating in the arenas of Rome with chariot races and gladiators," says PICCADILLY CIRCUS host Jeremy Brett in introducing this program. "But I like to think the real birth of the circus was the first time a group of people gathered in a circle because a man or a woman dared to display a skill—like a juggling act—creating a moment of magic for those who gathered around."

"The circus allows us all to be children. Through its grotesqueness, its absurdities, its frantic activity, the preposterous or daring behavior of the performers, through the miraculous communion with animals—the circus celebrates the joy of being alive."

Check your local PBS station for broadcast day and time.

BY JOEY SASSO

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: Norman Lear, the producer who brought us his famed 'All In The Family' and 'Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman,' has now entered the children's field. His company, TAT Communications, is now filming 'The New Little Rascals.' Like MH2, 'Rascals' will go into national syndication, rather than being offered to the networks for their acceptance. . . . The rumor around TV-land is that Johnny Carson will quit the 'Tonight Show' on the anniversary of the show, October 15th. We've also learned that David Brenner is being considered as his replacement. (I wonder what happened to Chevy Chase?) David is really doing his homework, too. He watches the show every night, studies the tapes of each of the 24 times he hosted and prides himself that he never repeated a joke on those occasions when he sat in for Johnny. Brenner has also been careful to obey the unwritten law not to appear on NBC-TV's 'Saturday Night Live.' . . . Peter Strauss says that 'Rich Man, Poor Man' will definitely not be back on TV next season. The decision is reported to have been made despite howls of protest from thousands of angry fans. Strauss is evidently fed up with the character who transformed him from a poor man into a rich man. The actor's marriage to florist wife Beverly almost broke up because of pressures caused by the show. "That's it—it's over," he told me. "The last time viewers saw me I was lying dead on the Las Vegas strip. And I'm staying dead—I'm not playing possum."

EYE ON TV: TV heroes Kojak and Archie Bunker and others who slur 'n slop the proper use of the English language are turning children into bumbling morons, says speech tutor Mrs. Susan Cairns. Catch-phrases like "Who loves ya, baby!" are running rampant in school playgrounds and classes. TV jargon has become everyday language for the kids, she told me. "They watch TV for such long periods that there is no incentive to talk. Family conversations seem to have gone out of fashion. The only other people kids converse with are their friends—and they talk the same way." . . . Michael Ansara (come on, you remember Cochise on 'Broken Arrow') just married his longtime girlfriend Beverly Kushida. Now here's the kicker: Barbara Eden (surely you remember 'I Dream of Jeannie'), his ex-wife, sent Bev a telegram wishing her as many happy years with Michael as she had. There was no maliciousness. Barbara and Michael are still friendly.

INSIDE THE TUBE: In Hawaii, with 'Charlie's Angels' it rained torrents every day. Maybe that's what made Angel Jaclyn Smith so homesick that she was near tears. Or might she be missing Dennis Cole? And Angel Kate Jackson has been hearing a lot of long-distance chatting from Burt Reynolds, who's giving Warren Beatty some competition there. . . . TV supercop David Soul 'Hutch' of 'Starsky and Hutch,' who'd just as soon punch someone on the screen as talk to him, is really a 'pussy cat' in real life. So says beautiful Lynne Marta, the girl David announced would soon become the third Mrs. Soul. "David is such a bumbling professor type," Lynne told me, who has lived with Soul for the past three years in a tiny cottage in the Los Angeles suburb of Sherman Oaks. "And his announcement publicly that he was to marry me took not only his fans but me by surprise as well. As of now, I'm not so sure of what I want to do. I've been trying to figure out my feelings ever since David made his surprise announcement. . . . Ed Asner, soon to star in his own series, 'Lou Grant,' prefers Irish Coffee, made with Dunphy's Irish Whiskey."

Sheriff's candidates discuss campaign issues

By MAX ERKILETIAN
Staff Writer

HUGHESVILLE— For the first time in the campaign for sheriff, all four candidates appeared together and outlined the programs they hope to implement if elected in the Aug. 16 special election. They spoke at a Thursday morning breakfast meeting of the Pettis County Community Development Council here.

Several ideas proposed were made public for the first time.

Republican candidate John E. "Bud" Brown called for a work release program for county prisoners. He also said he would like to investigate the possibility of using county prisoners to work on county roads.

Interim Sheriff Don Stratton, the Democratic candidate, said his department has a good reputation, but can be improved. He called for a "sheriff's reserve" force, weekly conferences with members of the news media and creation of a criminal investigation position within the department.

Jack Coutts, an independent candidate, proposed a youth program, more specialization by deputies and expansion of the current force to aid city marshals.

Al McAllister, another independent candidate, said he agreed with many of the ideas expressed by the other candidates and focused on his years of experience as a law enforcement officer in Virginia and Kansas City.

While pledging to seek an expansion of the current force of deputies, Stratton noted, "I can't stand up here today and tell you I am going to get two more deputies. No one can promise you that. The number of deputies is governed by the county court and the circuit judge. I will ask them for more, but they are the ones who set the number."

He said the addition of two deputies to the force would allow more and better road patrol in the county.

Coutts and Brown had pledged earlier to seek more deputies.

Brown also called for a night deputy and "maximum training for all deputies." Renewing a campaign promise from his bid last November to unseat former Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, Brown said he would hire regular or "special deputies" to live in "all four corners of the county." He said this would allow quicker response to calls.

Coutts and Stratton also called for more training.

Coutts also used the term "special deputy," who he said would be used "to extend the department's authority to outlying areas." He said such deputies could also be used to "back up city marshals."

Stratton said he would work for the development of a sheriff's reserve unit. He said such a unit would be comprised of persons commissioned by the sheriff who had undergone "a number of class time hours and a number of hours of on-the-job training."

Stratton and Coutts said they plan to seek more specialization by officers.

Coutts said he thought the department will need an officer to focus on narcotics to cooperate with federal and state narcotics officers working in the area.

Stratton said he favors creating a criminal investigation deputy's post. He said such an officer would be in charge of "working on major crimes."

He also called for a weekly conference with members of the news media.

"The news media is a very vital link between law enforcement and citizens in the county. Therefore I have suggested a 15 minute to half-hour weekly meeting with members of the news media to discuss problems they are having in getting the news and what can be done about it," said Stratton.

Coutts said his administration would concentrate on problems of youth.

"I want to set up a youth program that will be outstanding. I want to work hand-in-hand with young people and let them know they are part of their communities and government," Coutts declared at one point.

Later, he returned to youth problems.

"I propose a young persons Pettis County deputies group, so they can help control some of the problems themselves. I want young people to work together with the sheriff's department so they can feel responsible. Young people must be made to feel needed," Coutts said.

Brown's work release program would let prisoners work at a job during the day and serve their jail time at night. He noted that such a program is currently in operation in Greene County. He said he would also investigate the possibility of

Turner heads agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter ordered all of the nation's intelligence-gathering agencies placed under the control of CIA director Stansfield Turner Thursday in an attempt to centralize direction of the spy network.

Turner, a classmate of Carter at the U.S. Naval Academy, will control the budgets and activities of all intelligence-gathering agencies, which previously reported to departments ranging from Defense to Treasury.

The plan does not affect the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Administration officials denied that the reorganization would make Turner an "intelligence czar" although he will have greater responsibilities.

The reorganization plan also gives the National Security Council, directed by Carter's national security assistant, Zbigniew Brzezinski, a leading role in over-all direction of the intelligence community.

Scattered agencies in the Departments of Defense, State, Treasury and Justice, as well as the Central Intelligence Agency itself, all have intelligence-gathering duties.

The reorganization establishes what will be known as a "National Intelligence Tasking Center" to set specific tasks for all intelligence collection agencies, and a Policy Review Committee within the National Security Council to set priorities for intelligence requirements.

Turner will be in charge of both the tasking center and the review committee.

The changes were welcomed by Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, who said placing all budgetary responsibility in the hands of a chief of intelligence is "a step in the right direction."

Inouye, D-Hawaii, said, however, it was important that the reorganization preserve the "independent analytic judgment-making processes" of the various intelligence agencies.

Station makes apology for fake report of war

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss radio apologized Thursday for a satirical program in which phony news bulletins reported an East-West war in which neutron bombs were dropped and 480,000 people killed. The broadcast triggered a rash of panicky telephone calls.

The 50-minute program entitled "Sorting Out the Facts" was aired Wednesday night immediately after the regular evening newscast.

Realistic sounding news flashes interspersed between music and local commentary reported that heavy fighting broke out along the border

Concentrate on Geneva

Syria rejects meeting

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria turned down a U.S.-endorsed suggestion that Middle East foreign ministers meet before a Geneva peace conference is held, saying Thursday it is "better if we concentrate at this stage" on the conference itself.

Egypt suggested the foreign ministers meeting earlier in the week. The idea was accepted by Israel and carried to Damascus by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance as a part of his 12-day mission to move Middle East peace negotiations forward.

President Hafez Assad said he preferred to move directly to a well-prepared Geneva peace conference, adding that the Egyptian idea of a ministerial "working group" might be viewed as a "competitor" to the conference.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, during his talks with Vance this week, suggested holding a "working group" in New York or Washington in mid-September. Vance immediately endorsed the idea and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin also concurred.

Jordan has not indicated whether it will support the "working group" idea. Vance is scheduled to visit Amman on Friday and U.S. sources said the ministerial meeting could be held if Jordan agrees to attend.

Earlier, Assad was quoted as telling Vance that Israeli behavior in the West Bank of the Jordan River is not compatible with a serious interest in peace.

Assad told Vance, however, that he will cooperate in removing "all obstacles to peace" in the Middle East, said a Syrian spokesman who gave an account of the meeting.

Israel recently legalized three settlements on the bank, which it captured in 1967. The issue also touched off an Israeli-American exchange last week.

President Carter called Israel's legitimization of the settlements an obstacle to peace, but said he did not discuss the legitimization with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin during Begin's recent Washington visit.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dyan defended the legitimization as "constructive for peace."

Vance told reporters Thursday that he had a good meeting and discussed, among other topics, an Egyptian proposal for setting up a "working group" of Arab and Israeli foreign ministers next month.

"Relations are fine," Vance said. However, he added: "We still have differences on a number of items."

He declined to provide any estimate of how his session with Assad had affected his effort to set up peace talks. "We've put forward ideas. They have put forward ideas. It's a process of developing ideas," he said.

Assad insisted that there must be total Israeli withdrawal from all land won in the 1967 Six-Day war.

Carter wants aliens to stay in America

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter asked Congress Thursday to allow millions of illegal aliens to remain in the United States. But he proposed sealing the border against more aliens and penalizing those who employ anyone still in the country illegally.

Carter's proposals, if adopted by Congress, would allow aliens who could prove they arrived here before 1970 to stay in the United States and become legal residents. Eventually, they could apply for citizenship.

Initial congressional reaction varied. The chairmen of the committees on immigration in the House and Senate said they would hold early hearings on the matter. But members of the Hispanic caucus in the House criticized the proposal, saying it would lead to job discrimination.

The measure is aimed at the estimated millions of Mexican farm workers who cross the border to work in the United States. Government officials say they have no solid figure how many such workers are in the country, nor what percentage came before 1970.

To stop the continuing flow of aliens into the country, Carter proposed increasing the strength of the border patrol along Mexico by 2,000 men. He also proposed civil fines of up to $1,000 per alien for employers caught knowingly hiring illegal workers and suggested criminal penalties for people who smuggle aliens into the country or help them find work.

Attorney General Griffin Bell said employers would have to ask each worker for a Social Security card. But he acknowledged the system would depend heavily on the voluntary cooperation of employers.

Under the proposal, aliens who could prove they arrived between Jan. 1, 1970 and Dec. 31, 1976, could also register for a new status that would allow them to stay and work in the United States for five years. They would not be eligible for social services like welfare, nor would they be entitled to bring their family members with them.

Bell said there still would be no guarantee that this "temporary resident" class would not be deported after the five years. He said anyone who arrived this year would be subject to immediate deportation.

Bell and Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said they couldn't estimate the number of illegal aliens in the country. Previous government estimates range from 4 million to 12 million, based on the fact that 875,000 were caught last year.

Extension of water line

Parkhurst request is tabled

A request by William R. Parkhurst to extend a city water line onto his property to supply a trailer park that will house Boeing Co. employees this fall was tabled by the Sedalia Water Board Wednesday night until a joint meeting with Parkhurst can be arranged to discuss the situation.

Parkhurst has a two-year contract with Boeing to house some of its employees who will begin work on the Minuteman missile silos at Whiteman Air Force Base this November. Parkhurst's 45-unit trailer court is located west of Griffith St. between Kay Avenue and Highway 50.

"Parkhurst is asking us to install a water main and individual service and he's asking us to absorb the costs of maintenance. We'd furnish the meter," said Herb Taylor, water department manager.

If Parkhurst's request is granted, it will set a new precedent in water department policy. In the past, the department has never extended a city water line onto private property.

"There are several things that worry me. Private property is one. Then it would set up an awful bad practice. There would be a lot of others who want to do the same thing," Taylor said.

Taylor explained that any individual who owns more than 15 water meter connections qualifies as a public utility business.

"If we have a main line to the edge of his property and then he pays for each connection, he's in the water business," Taylor said.

"We have got to have more information before we make any decision. No way we can maintain it on private property," said board member Jake Siragusa.

Taylor said he would try to arrange a joint meeting with Parkhurst next week.

In other board business, Taylor announced he intends to recommend a 10 to 15 per cent water rate increase beginning Jan. 1, 1978.

"We've had many expenses on the wells and we need additional filters. A filter cost around $500,000 three to four years ago. The only way we can get money is through rates or a revenue bond issue," Taylor said.

The last general rate increase was in 1974. An increase in lower bracket rates went into effect March 1, 1977.

"We're operating in the black now, but

Uphold ice cream

The Great Ice Cream Plot thickens.

In case you missed it, the plot involves the ice cream industry's attempt to get the ingredient rules for ice cream relaxed to permit dairy products to be replaced with other, cheaper substances.

Specifically, the ice cream makers would like to substitute a low-cost imported milk-derivative called caseinate for non-fat dry milk. Other heretofore prohibited substances also would find their way into ice cream under the proposals.

The Food and Drug Administration, true to its practice of caving in to the food industry's wishes, was on the Hill Tuesday to defend the proposed rules change. Commissioner Donald Kennedy told a House subcommittee that the integrity of ice cream would be upheld and consumers would save money as a result of the change.

But the proper view, in our opinion, was expressed by Rep. Fred W. Richmond, D-N.Y., who called the new ice cream formula "another step towards chemicalized, artificial, high-technology food." Other witnesses questioned the nutritional value of the new ingredients, and expressed doubt that consumers would end up saving any money at all.

Even in its present form, ice cream is a far cry from that of yesteryear in terms of quality. We trust that Congress will prevent its further debasement.

Water as a resource

Missouri needs water, but it also badly needs a water policy. This was the message to come out of a statewide water conference held in Jefferson City Tuesday.

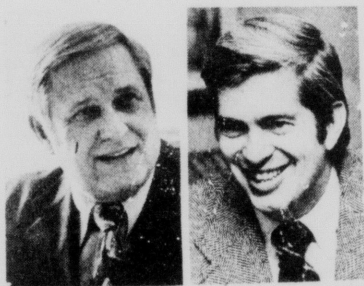

One area where this is especially urgent is weather modification. Prof. Wayne Decker of the University of Missouri pointed out that we are one of the few states in the union without some means of regulating rainmaking and other aspects of weather modification.

Beyond that, the conference discussed the need for approaching the whole subject of water in Missouri as a very limited resource, which it is. This points out the need for a state water policy devoted to the wise and proper use of this valuable resource.

Drought time adds a special note of urgency to the considerations discussed at the state conference. The hoped for result will be that Missouri does some long, hard thinking about its water supplies.

"Hello! Hello! Who is this?"

By JACK ANDERSON and
LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Confidential documents smuggled to us from inside the maximum security penitentiary at Atlanta prove that, despite the high walls and the celibate life behind them, love can still conquer all.

The love story from Atlanta is not written in the language of a Shakespearean sonnet. It is related, rather, in turgid Justice Department prose. Yet it has its Romeo and Juliet overtones.

The story is told in a confidential "incident report," which begins dryly: "On Monday, June 27, 1977, it was brought to (the authorities') attention that information had recently been received which indicated that inmate Farrell Kirk 96321-131 married one Marcella Brockett in the institution visiting room on or about Jan. 24, 1977."

This was strictly against the rules; inmates simply aren't married or given in marriage in federal prisons. Or to put it in Justice Department language, the reported marriage was "in violation of institution policy statement A-7300.70."

Aroused over such an irregularity, the authorities began an investigation which, according to the official account, "involved contact with the probate court in Ringo, Ga. Officials of this court verified the existence of a marriage certificate, bearing the names of Farrell Kirk and Marcella Brockett, with the Rev. James Gallahan officiating."

This succinct if unromantic account of the wedding of Marcella and Farrell omits the spicy details. Not mentioned is the story of how the intrepid couple arranged the ceremony and kept it secret, all behind prison bars. Nor does the official version describe what vicissitudes they face in the future.

Merry-go-round

Marriage performed behind federal bars

So tranquil was the nuptial ceremony that prison officials didn't discover it had happened for six months. The officiating reverend, it turns out, was also an inmate and, therefore, handy for the occasion. Marcella ingeniously had the marriage document legalized in court; then she sneaked it into the visiting room. And there, right under the noses of the prison guards, the couple was made one.

Almost. The disapproving federal government is now claiming the marriage is null and void. The probate court judge, on the other hand, assured our reporter Tom Rosenstiel that the marriage certificate is quite legal.

The true test of legality will have to wait until Marcella and Farrell apply for legal benefits as married persons. But this isn't their only problem. The prison has no intention of allowing conjugal visits, so the honeymoon will have to be postponed until September, 1980, when Farrell finishes his sentence for violating parole on a burglary rap.

***
COUPONS, COUPONS, COUPONS — In case the United States is hit by another fuel crisis, President Carter would rather impose gas rationing upon the public, say insiders, than let motorists fight for gas in chaotic pump lines.

He has even inherited 4.2 billion rationing coupons, which the Federal Energy Office printed three years ago. But this enormous stack of coupons, which are stored at a secret military installation out West, may not be usable.

Distraught officials have discovered that the coupons, with only slight modification, will give change for a dollar in money vending machines. Hundreds of thousands of these money changing contraptions are located across the country in laundromats, airports, amusement arcades and other establishments.

Thus the embarrassed officials apparently have a lot of colorful but worthless coupons on their hands. This is, it turns out, a multi-billion-dollar embarrassment. It cost the taxpayers about $11 million to print all those coupons. Nor is it cheap to store 4.2 billion ration tickets, although the precise figures are unavailable for storing and guarding them.

They were rushed off the printing press during the worst days of the Arab oil embargo, as the government prepared to resort to emergency rationing. But the crisis ended before the coupons were ready.

Ex-President Gerald Ford's energy advisers studied rationing last year but weren't satisfied with the findings. Congress had ordered his administration to submit a report on rationing. The report, however, was never presented.

The White House blamed bureaucratic delays. But our own sources insist that the Ford administration simply couldn't decide what to do about rationing.

The Carter crowd, meanwhile, favors rationing but doesn't know what to do with the questionable coupons. No final decision has been reached, an energy official told us, whether to keep them or dispose of them.

He suggested hopefully that the coupons would be more valuable for purchasing gas than changing into money. But theoretically at least, $11 million worth of coupons could be transformed in money-vending machines into $4.2 billion.

Confessed one insider: "I don't see how we can use those coupons."

Carl Rowan Perhaps Begin can do job

WASHINGTON — So, like half the world, you're wondering why President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and others are still talking optimistically about Middle East peace talks — despite the tough line being taken publicly by Israeli Premier Menahem Begin?

Rowan

A story being told in select circles here may offer the answer: When now-defeated Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin visited the White House in March Carter invited him upstairs for a man-to-man chat. The two men were still on the stairs when Carter said: "Now, tell me privately what your negotiating positions are."

The stolid Rabin replied: "My negotiating positions up here are the same as they were downstairs."

The story goes that a miffed Carter turned silent and that Rabin's upstairs conversation thereafter was mostly with Amy.

Sources telling this story say that Carter somehow got the word to Begin that this U.S. President expects visiting government leaders to talk to him in great confidence, tossing aside the rhetoric that is commonplace in sizable gatherings, or before TV cameras.

I am told that Begin did speak in confidence, and that Carter now speaks with optimism out of a belief that in "peace talks" Begin will be substantially different from the seeming hawk who legalized Israeli settlements on the West Bank recently.

That story about Begin's private flexibility permits some interesting new interpretations of the tough Israeli's recent public comments. When I asked him if he regarded the West Bank of the Jordan River as land to which Israel has "an historic, eternal and inalienable right," he said yes — and then made confusing remarks to the effect that the West Bank could be a matter of negotiation at Geneva or elsewhere.

I now know that Begin has said privately: "Yes, the West Bank belongs to Israel historically. But the political reality is that Israel cannot hold it without engaging in new wars. But I'm not going to give it away; I'll sell it."

So Begin wants Geneva talks in order to determine what he can get in return for the West Bank that will give Israel long range security and peace of mind.

The word here now is that while Begin took a harsh public posture of refusing to negotiate with members of the Palestine Liberation Organization, he is shrewd enough to know that no Geneva conference will be meaningful if the results are not endorsed by the moderate elements of the PLO. So Secretary of State Vance is telling Arab leaders to make special note of Begin's assertion that Palestinians can attend a Geneva conference and that Israel "will not search their pockets" to see if they have PLO connections. The White House has read this as an invitation to the PLO to nominate Palestinians who hold PLO goals for the Geneva conference — but Palestinians who are lieutenants, colonels and other warriors.

Begin bristled when asked if he had made private commitments to President Carter that differed from what he was saying publicly. Yet it seems clear that he was far more forthcoming in spelling out to Carter his "peace plan" and some of his negotiating positions than Rabin and other Israelis have been. In doing so, Begin seems to have kept alive our President's conviction that he can bring about a Middle East settlement.

That is why some officials here dismiss the pessimism that has become chronic to some of us Middle East observers. These officials continue to assert their belief that this is the best time ever for Israel and the Arabs to make a deal.

Hispanic Americans

The more than 11 million Americans of Spanish descent constitute approximately 5 per cent of the U.S. population. Of these, more than half are Mexican-Americans living for the most part in the Southwest, from Texas to California. The next largest Hispanic group is the Puerto Rican, numbering in the 1970 census almost 1.4 million and concentrated in the New York Metropolitan Area.

Con Ed gets that old time religion

WASHINGTON — There are no atheists at Consolidated Edison. Ever since the New York blackout Con Ed lawyers have been working day and night to prove that what happened was an "Act of God." If they can't prove that the Lord did it, they will be spending their next 20 years in court fighting lawsuits from the Bronx to the tip of Staten Island.

Buchwald

I stopped by to see how Con Edison's lawyers were doing. "God bless you," the receptionist said as she looked up from her Bible.

"I just wanted to speak to one of Con Edison's lawyers," I told her.

"Thou comest at the wrong time," she replied. "Mr. Flaherty is at Mass, Mr. Bradley is at a prayer breakfast meeting and Mr. Seligman is with his rabbi."

"My, this sounds like a religious office."

"Con Edison would never hire a lawyer who didn't believe in God," she said.

"They must have been pretty shaken up by the blackout," I said.

She sighed. "The Lord moves in mysterious ways. We must not question His decision to black out New York at a most inopportune time. He must have been very angry at the city or He would have never sent down those bolts of lightning to smite our power lines."

"Then you people believe that it was God who did it?"

"As Mr. Flaherty wrote in his brief yesterday, 'The Lord giveth light and He taketh it away. The power of Con Edison is in His hands.'"

"So you are not looking for any other reason for the blackout?" I asked.

"What other reason could there possibly be? Every safeguard known to man was in operation at the time. But there is no failsafe when the Lord turns His wrath against sinners."

"Is it Con Edison's position that New Yorkers are sinners?"

"Verily," she said. "You have only to walk down 42nd St. or Eighth Ave. to know why God was enraged. We are living in a virtual Sodom and Gomorrah," she said.

"Why didn't God just black out the porno shops and theaters showing X-rated movies if He was so mad?"

"Even the Lord cannot smash one of our circuits without putting the others out of commission. Besides this happened in the summertime and there was sinning going on all over the city, particularly in apartments and houses where the wives were away on vacation."

"I forgot about that."

"Con Edison knew about the sinning, and our engineers feared the wrath of God for a week before the blackout. But we felt that, as a power company, it was not our place to warn the populace that if they continued their behavior the Lord would loose the fearful lightning of His powerful swift sword."

"Do you think the 'Act of God' defense will hold up in court?"

"We can only pray it will. If the courts decide against us, then no one will ever believe the Lord is trying to tell the people something. As Mr. Bradley said to his Bible class yesterday, "If this blackout doesn't make people believers nothing will."

I heard an organ in the background.

"What's that?" I asked.

"It's the beginning of Vespers. Con Ed has Vesper services for its employees every day."

"Is this something new?"

"We started them the day after the blackout. It was the legal department's idea."

"Is it an electric organ I hear?"

"No, it's manual. The Lord only knows when He will strike us again."

The slammaniac usually gets that mania as a result of an overdose of Blackwood. South is entitled to think about a slam after his partner who has opened the bidding jumps him from one to three spades. He also has a way to invite the slam. He can bid four clubs. This bid of an extra suit after spades have been raised enthusiastically is a slam try below game which is all that South's cards warrant. That quiet bid doesn't appeal to our slammaniac. His partner has opened the bidding and jumped. Obviously it is time to trot out Blackwood.

He bids four notrump. Should his partner show one ace he wouldn't know what to do, but his partner shows two aces. It seems appropriate to ask for kings. North shows two of those also, but our bidder decides to settle for six since two kings are still missing.

He receives a favorable trump lead which gives him time to set up dummy's long diamonds, but he still can't score 12 tricks. He has to lose a diamond to set the suit up and two discards aren't enough to take care of all his losers.

Ann Landers

Burial request is unusual

Dear Ann Landers: A long time ago you printed a letter from a man who lived in Oklahoma. He wanted to know if he could be buried in his 1939 Dodge. We laughed when we read that one and I was sure you made it up because you came through with such a clever answer.

Well, I want to apologize for my thoughts because I read just today that a woman in Los Angeles left a $2.5 million estate and a court commissioner is trying to decide whether or not to honor her request. She wants to be buried next to her husband in a lace nightgown, in her Ferrari ... with the seat slanted comfortably.

Now what was the answer you gave that man in Oklahoma? — Good Memory But Slipped A Cog

Dear Cog: I suggested that he be cremated and put in the ashtray.

The commissioner, however, might have a little trouble with my suggestion. The L.A. woman's next of kin could have something to say about it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 years old and need some help. My problem is giving me headaches.

My father works in a school. Nearly every day he brings home something that doesn't belong to him — like rings, umbrellas, pens and so on. I'm sure he finds these items in school because they are not new and he would not be buying them even if they were. Who needs ten umbrellas?

Yesterday I went to the hardware store with my father and I saw him take a screw off a pipe and put it in his pocket. Next he helped himself to some washers for the faucets — just put them in his pocket. Then he BOUGHT some washers and paid for them. I couldn't believe it!

When we came home I took money out of my piggy bank and went to church and put it in the candle box. I'm so afraid my dad will get caught stealing I don't know what to do. Please help me. — Sad Girl with your father. Tell him you think he should be turning the items he finds in school over to the lost and found. Explain that it bothers you when he brings these things home. Also tell him you saw him absent-mindedly slip some cheap items into his pocket when you went to the hardware store together. Give him a chance to come out looking decent. I bet he shapes up, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a woman wrote to you and complained that whenever her in-laws are in her presence they speak their native tongue and she feels very uncomfortable. It seems her in-laws have been in this country for 15 years. Your advice was terrible. You told her that she should learn some phrases in their language ("Hello Goodbye — How nice! Isn't that too bad — thank you"). That would make them feel more kindly toward her (according to the maven of all time) and she in turn would feel less hostile toward them.

Such garbage! Why didn't you address yourself to the real problem? Something is out of kilter when people live in a country for 15 years and refuse to learn the language. Tell it like it is or quit telling it. — St. Louis Lulu

Dear Lu: What makes you so sure the in-laws can't speak English? Many people who were born and reared in other countries speak their native tongue when they are among "their own" because it is easier and they are more comfortable with it. Whenever possible I try to give the underdog the benefit of the doubt. It's a good approach. You ought to try it sometime.

Mrs. Jerome had lived here the past 16 years and was a member of the Knob Noster Presbyterian Church.

Other survivors include three sons, Russell Jerome, Huntsville, Ala.; Lewis Jerome, Bay Saint Louis, Miss.; Ross Jerome, Plattsburg Air Force Base, N.Y.; three daughters, Mrs. Lucille Bolton, Van Nuys, Calif.; Mrs. Donna Bales, Littleton, Colo.; Mrs. Judy Lewis, Rolla; two brothers, Gordon Matthews, Hallock, Minn.; William Matthews, Los Angeles, Calif.; one sister, Mrs. Violet Breech, Sun Valley, Calif.; and 13 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the church.

Two potential CD directors nominated at meeting here

Two names will be submitted to the Joint Emergency Procedures Council for the position of deputy director of the Sedalia-Pettis County Civil Defense Agency.

Richard Orendorff, agency director, asked for nominations other than the two made at the Wednesday night meeting of Civil Defense volunteers. No other names were offered except Jess Marcarenaz, Pettis County fire chief, and William Watring Sr., 1637 South Carr, a Civil Defense volunteer.

The deputy director will assist the director in agency operations and assume the director's duties in his absence. The deputy will receive a $1,200 a year.

Orendorff said he hopes the council would select a deputy at their September meeting. The council is made up of City Council members, County Court judges and area department heads.

$25,000 in damages requested by woman

Evelyn M. Walker filed a $25,000 damage suit in Circuit Court Wednesday against Leopauld Letourneau, Route 2, Cole Camp, in connection with injuries she allegedly sustained in an accident Oct. 11, 1975.

Walker's petition claimed she was eastbound on Highway 52 about two miles west of Highway 65 when her auto collided with a westbound combine operated by Letourneau, who was attempting to turn south.

The petition filed by Walker seeks damages for her alleged injuries, expenses incurred and loss of employment.

between East and West Germany. Later bulletins said neutron bombs had been set off and there was a regretful announcement of the death toll.

The Swiss radio incident recalled Orson Welles' "War of the Worlds" broadcast on Halloween 1938 about a make-believe Martian invasion of New Jersey. That broadcast touched off panic and a mass exodus by thousands of New York area residents.

"480,000 people killed but no destruction and good luck for the survivors," one Swiss radio editor said in summarizing the program. "The intention was to satirize the concept of the neutron bomb as a clean bomb. We thought it would be clear to everybody that these news flashes were fiction."

The satire was based on a West German magazine story on the bomb, which some commentators' described as a weapon made to kill people and leave property undamaged. Actually, the recently developed U.S. warhead produces twice the deadly radiation as a conventional nuclear bomb but less than one-tenth as much blast power, heat and fallout.

using prisoners to work on cleaning county roads.

Brown also took the opportunity to answer criticism of his candidacy by saying he will seek training and already possesses the administrative skills necessary to be sheriff.

Brown cited his Missouri National Guard service as training he has already received. He added, "I will, if elected, enroll in a law enforcement course this fall at SFCC."

Brown continued, "The sheriff has to be a good manager and I have been doing that for 22 years in private business."

He also called for "new blood" in the sheriff's office and concluded his remarks by saying, "integrity, foresight, business experience and the ability to work with people outweigh any so called experience that has, as far as I am concerned, gotten in a rut."

Automakers get go-ahead on '78 cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress gave automakers the go ahead Thursday night to begin manufacturing 1978-model cars without fitting them with advanced new pollution-control devices.

The action apparently averted a production-line shutdown threatened by the auto industry, which claimed it was technologically unprepared to meet new pollution standards scheduled to take effect.

Both House and Senate gave final approval—by voice vote—to a compromise bill delaying the tougher auto exhaust standards until 1980-year models. President Carter is expected to sign the bill.

The Senate sent the measure to the President's desk late Thursday night after Utah senators dropped their plans for a filibuster over another section of the bill.

The legislation revises clean air rules for nearly all sources of air pollution, giving cities with dirty air up to 10 more years to meet some standards while offering new protection to areas that already have clean air.

Under existing law, the stiffer auto standards were to take effect on 1978 models, scheduled to begin rolling off assembly lines this month.

Auto manufacturers argued that they could not possibly meet the deadline, and said unless Congress granted them another extension they would be forced to shut down.

It is the fourth such delay the industry has received from meeting the tighter standards for three auto-exhaust pollutants — hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides.

Club members agree to buy Walnut Hills

Following the wishes of a strong majority of their fellow members, the Sedalia Country Club board of directors this week voted to enter into an agreement to purchase the Walnut Hills Country Club for $950,000.

In approving the proposal by a vote of 89-40, a majority of the club members affirmed the idea for the second time since the club's golf course, club house and other facilities were heavily damaged in the May 4 tornado. In addition to assuming control of the Walnut Hills Country Club clubhouse, 18-hole golf course and swimming pool, the Sedalia Country Club will also assume control of the Walnut Hills Club financial assets totaling around $150,000.

An alternative proposal, submitted by Victor J. Van Dyne, John E. Lamy and E.A. Emerick, was not accepted. These men proposed that, instead of purchasing the assets of the Walnut Hills Club, the Sedalia Country Club give each of its members $500 from its treasury to purchase a membership in either the Walnut Hills or Westmoreland Country Clubs. Because the initiation fee at Westmoreland is $75, persons would receive $425 as a cash credit.

This total expenditure, the men noted, would be under $100,000. With the money thus saved, it was further proposed, the Sedalia Country Club could construct facilities for a social club on its South Highway 65 property. This club would have contained dining facilities, swimming pools, tennis courts, handball courts, exercise saunas and dressing rooms, billiard and card rooms and a bar and tap room, but no golf course.

The city Park Board has also expressed interest in obtaining the golf course to convert to a municipal recreation area. Roscoe Righter, director of parks and recreation, said Thursday he is still investigating possible sources of funding. A public meeting on this matter, he said, will probably not be held until more definite plans for possible funding of the project can be made.

Lack of bids seen as threat to work

Because no bids were received at Monday night's City Council meeting on a proposed federally-funded nine-block street curb and guttering project on the city's northside, the entire project is threatened, City Engineer Robert Cunningham said Thursday.

Funds for the project, expected to cost around $60,000, are included in the local community block grant program and hence will not be available after around Dec. 1. Because the bid specifications have to allow for 100 days to complete the project, a bid must be accepted by the council at its Aug. 15 meeting at the latest, Cunningham said.

The project will cover Pettis Street, from Ohio to Mill, and Saline, from Mill to Engineer. The area is actually a continuous roadway, with its name changed from Pettis to Saline at the intersection of Mill. A small amount of culvert and storm sewer work will also be performed along the street, Cunningham said.

One reason for the reluctance of contractors to bid on the project, Cunningham explained, involves government regulations that accompany any federally-funded construction project. Also, he said, contractors he has talked to have indicated they might not be able to meet the 100-day deadline because of other construction projects they will have underway.

Cunningham said he advertised in The Democrat-Capital and in construction magazines in hopes of luring bidders. He said he will continue to solicit bidders and will talk to representatives of at least two local companies and one Kansas City firm.

If a suitable bid is not received at the Aug. 15 council meeting, the project will probably have to be scrapped. If this happens, Tom Delph, director of the block grant program, said he would probably request that the funds be diverted to the block grant program's local housing repair project. This request would have to go through the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

due to the increase in costs of chemicals and other things, we're going to have to keep rates up to keep up with costs," Taylor said.

The Missouri Conservation Department will restock Springfork Lake with fish, it was announced. On July 25 the department donated 40 pounds of bass and, by the end of October, will have supplied 15,000 bass, 75,000 blue gill and 15,000 catfish fingerlings. Public fishing will not be allowed until the spring of 1979, giving the fish time to grow, Taylor said. Previous fishing charges of $1 and of 50 cents for persons over 65 will still be in effect.

The board agreed to extend two mains. One will extend 725 feet to property owned by Pat Lolla on Willow Lane. The other extension will be 1,650 feet along East Highway 50 to property owned by Russell Evans, where "Casey's", a convenience store, is under construction. The store is expected to be open for business by Aug. 19.
